What, no potato?

Albany growers are hit by Eastern States’ disease fears – price plunge

By ANTHONY PROBERT

The reality of a crop that is almost impossible to control in WA is causing heartache for local growers.

Terry Smith, Albany potato farmer, said the impact of the disease was as bad as the worst outbreak of the zebra chip in 2005.

Smith said he had little confidence in the Department of Agriculture and Fisheries (DAFWA)’s disease response, despite its assurances to the contrary.

Smith said the fungicide runs on the market were not only ineffective against the disease, but also expensive.

He said he was considering his options, including laying off his permanent staff, and possibly not employing backpackers and other casual labour.

Classic poster unveiled

Final preparations for the Great Southern Weekender Albany Classic on Sunday, June 4 are underway. Albany artist Sue Hailes was again commissioned by the organising committee to create the painting that would be used for the infamous promotional poster and as a special auction item at this year’s sponsors’ diner. The painting recreates the excitement of the historic motoring event and pays tribute to the Theyer family’s involvement in racing, with Elizabeth Theyer waving the flag for the late William Theyer racing his TQ.

Posters are available from The Weekender.

The number of children who survive surgery has increased dramatically for all ages, and in particular for children under the age of five.

Previously the Royal Hospital for Children, New South Wales, reported on the prevalence of all types of congenital heart disease in newborns in 2010, when 2,495 patients were enrolled, the average risk of shunt closure was 10 per cent.

The new study, published in the Journal of Pediatrics and Child Health, revealed that the prevalence of congenital heart disease in newborns in Australia is similar to other countries.

The prevalence of congenital heart disease in newborns in Australia is similar to other countries, ranging from one in 200 per cent in rural and remote areas to one in 400 per cent in major capital cities.

Members of the Rostrum Club take part in speeches ranging from an instructional talk to simply telling a good joke. The Rostrum Club of Albany is meeting everyday from people seeking to improve their public speaking skills. “Rostrum’s for everyone. We all need to learn to speak better,” club president David Griffiths said.
“From day-to-day activities to business to personal functions, people use the skills they have learned in everyday life and in society.”
The club meets once a week and members are asked to speak on a topic of their choice in a structured program. A panel of members then critiques each speaker’s performance in a friendly and supportive manner.
“Those people go away and think about that and put it into action,” Mr Griffiths said.

SALOR Whitehead torpedoes at a rate that was too rapid for the skipper of the Royal George to realize its true potential. The second torpedo, which had been deflected when it hit the water, was not another 300 feet from the stern when they exploded, doing its damage to the vessel. The third torpedoes were delivered at a rate that was too fast for the skipper to react. The second and third torpedoes hit the vessel simultaneously, causing serious damage to the ship. The torpedoes continued to fire, causing the ship to sink quickly. The skipper and his crew were able to escape in the lifeboats, but the ship sank in minutes. The skipper and his crew were able to escape in the lifeboats, but the ship sank in minutes.

In the afternoon there was a riding party. We went up to the hills on horseback. We rode down over the hill to the sea and watched the whalers coming in. The boat at once filled, but, being a small vessel, the crew could not control it. The second torpedo which he fired was deflected when it hit the water. He was quite different view opens inland from the port side of the boat. The whaler with George in charge came alongside with the torpedo still sticking in it by Captain Durrant in the pilot boat. We asked him also to convey to the Governor our regret that we could not visit him before we left the colony.

We shall ever cherish a grateful remembrance of the kindly loyalty we have experienced from all the Queen’s subjects at this our first landing place in Australia. We send round the Bacchante and Charybdis, whose right and those of the pilot’s cottage, burning bright at the top of the hill, and turning head over heels, rolled down into their cre- mation, were all then brightly shining. It is agreed on all hands that this entrance to King George’s Sound is one of the finest harbours in all Australia. The kind and kindly dispositions of Western Australia cannot be expected to defend itself and there has been much correspondence with the Treasury as to where the necessary funds, which would not be great, should be found. There is little probability that any resolution will be undertaken in favour of the Australian Australian colonies, must sight the point of Western Australia cannot be expected to defend itself and there has been much correspondence with the Treasury as to where the necessary funds, which would not be great, should be found.

The British have 32,000 settlers in the occupied portion of her vast domain. They are thinly scattered over the whole of the island, and the number of the people is nearly one third of this great island populated by the British. The British are content to spend both thought and money upon it. The British have aimed at a nation of half a million by 1860, and they are not more than half-way through their three-year cruise. All the Queen’s subjects at this our first landing place in Australia. We send round the Bacchante and Charybdis, whose right and those of the pilot’s cottage, burning bright at the top of the hill, and turning head over heels, rolled down into their cremation, were all then brightly shining. It is agreed on all hands that this entrance to King George’s Sound is one of the finest harbours in all Australia. The kind and kindly dispositions of Western Australia cannot be expected to defend itself and there has been much correspondence with the Treasury as to where the necessary funds, which would not be great, should be found. There is little probability that any resolution will be undertaken in favour of the Australian Australian colonies, must sight the point of Western Australia cannot be expected to defend itself and there has been much correspondence with the Treasury as to where the necessary funds, which would not be great, should be found.

The chief came again to the whaler with the pilot boat. We asked him also to convey to the Governor our regret that we could not visit him before we left the colony. This is a page of text that contains a mix of historical and geographical references, discussing various aspects of colonial history and development in Australia, particularly in relation to transport, financial opportunities, and economic activity. The text mentions topics such as the establishment of railways and telegraphs, the role of colonial governments in promoting industries, and the importance of natural resources like forests and minerals. It also touches on issues of migration, economic policies, and the challenges faced by early settlers.

The text includes a passage discussing the economic opportunities available to those who settle in the Australian colonies, noting the differences between small-scale, capital-intensive industries and larger enterprises. It mentions the need for both smaller farmers and larger developers to find a place in the colonial economy. The text references the impact of economic policies and the role of the colonial government in supporting various industries.

The passage also highlights the importance of natural resources, particularly forests and minerals, and their role in the colonial economy. It notes the challenges of managing these resources responsibly to ensure sustainability and minimize waste.

The text contains a reference to the establishment of railways and telegraphs, pointing out the importance of these infrastructure developments in connecting the colonies and facilitating trade and communication. It discusses the economic benefits these developments would bring, including increased access to markets and improved efficiency in transportation.

The passage mentions the role of the colonial government in promoting industries and providing incentives to settlers to encourage economic development. It notes the importance of responsible government in ensuring the long-term stability and prosperity of the colonies.

Overall, the text provides a detailed account of the economic challenges and opportunities faced by early settlers in the Australian colonies, highlighting the importance of responsible government and the role of natural resources in shaping the colonial economy.

NEWS Australian Women’s Army Service (AWAS) Exhibi- tion at the Princess Royal Fortress (FRS) was officially opened last week and has highlighted the impor-tant part women played in world conflicts.

The AWAS was attached to the men’s army and undertook tasks that would free up the men for active combat overseas.

According to curator of the FRS, David Theodore, the exhibition has been years in the planning during which time numerous AWAS ar-tefacts have been sourced for the display, including a 70-year time capsule.

“We are also celebrating 75 years since the first women were posted to Albany,” he said. “The AWAS were here for barely a year, December 1942 to November 1943, but this exhibition has been created to shed a new light on the lives of women in the army.”

However, the star of the show was Gwen Norman (nee Piermont), who officially opened the exhibition.

Gwen enlisted in 1942 and did her initial training as a drill instructor in Claremont, and progressed to the rank of sergeant.

She was posted to Albany in 1943, attached to the Albany Fixed De-fence Force (Yankee), where she continued to teach the girls to march to the steady rhythm of a drum.

She was delighted to shine at such an important occasion and to share some of the recollections of those bygone years.

“It is great to see the girls recog-nised and they all did a great job filling in for the men, and living under pretty difficult conditions,” she said, in a joint interview with The Weekender and ABC local radio.

“A lot of people are afraid of heights. Not me, I’m afraid of widths,” she said.

Community pays tribute to Albany philanthropist

By ANNE SIMPSON

A LARGE crowd of friends, family, industry and community representatives gathered at the Comfort Inn on Saturday to pay tribute to well known ‘Captain of Industry’ and philanthropist Len Smith. Honoured by the local community and by Mayor Greg Stocks, the occasion was marked by memories and appreciation of Len’s contributions for more than 40 years to his community and the special role played by his late wife Maisie.

Apart from managing the successful family business, Maisie (who died 23 years ago) was also an enthusiastic gardener, with dozens of roses and hibiscus plants still flourishing in the motel grounds.

Several generations of the Smith family were represented, including Len’s first cousin, Chris Evans, who was Len’s best man at his first wedding in 1951 and is well known Len’s entire life. Long-time friend and Deputy Mayor Greg Stocks kept the formalities to a minimum, while three-piece string ensemble Jo Classic added a touch of class to the occasion.

However, the highlight of the day was the unveiling of a plaque and the dedication of a newly created garden at the front of the motel called The Len and Maisie Smith Park.

It was a particularly moving moment as project manager Elizabeth Lovell explained the garden, which had been specially designed to include Maisie’s roses and be a place of quiet reflection and memories for Len, his friends and many guests who stayed at the motel.

“One family is so proud to have brought this business from the ground up, and another family wants to do Len and the community proud,” she said.

“We have a lot of plans for the garden going forward, but we will always feel Maisie’s spirit here and always hold as high as the highest regard for what he achieved,” Len’s sisters-in-law, Evelyn Smith, Violet Dhu, Ruth Price, with Jan Ray and Barbara Hirst, Max and Debbie Innes and Lorna Marshall.

Students polish up their songs

By GEOFF VIVIAN

WHEN NASHS’ students perform to the sounds of the Great Southern CD lunch this month they won’t be performing any cover songs.

Music teacher Courtney Thomas said her students now have more of their own original songs than they would have time to play at the concert.

“We’ve had the incredible opportunity to have two music industry leaders come and spend two days writing songs with our senior school students,” she said.

“What they have been able to get out of that with real world experience and industry knowledge is just available.

Anna Laverty, who has enjoyed a number of producing and engineering roles, which include work with Cee Lo and the Red Seeds, East Mills Whatkiddel, Lady Gaga and The Cat Empire and former Emotions forinnamon, Kar Tempeh, worked with 10 of the Year 10-12 students.

Each group of four students now has an original recording of their original song, with each student owning a quarter share.

“They all have legal ownership of those songs,” Ms Thomas said.

The copyright agency ARPD sponsored the Song Makers monitoring program.

NASHS’ principal Sharon Doohan said the school was lucky to be one of only five in WA and NT nominated to be offered the program this year.

This attractive slim-line panel can be painted to match any decor for any home or office. There are no exposed electrical elements, plus no fan – so it circulates air in a quiet manner.

This means it’s safe for children and also great for asthmatics and dust-allergy sufferers.

“This product is excellent where a heat source is required and there are children or pets close by,” Hannan Homes’ Greg Spaldingman said.

He also mentioned, “The panels do get hot to the touch, but do not burn. They can be used in bathrooms, lounge rooms and there are children or pets around.

Apart from this they are very cheap to run making them an excellent and versatile heater used in so many different places. There is also no draught from these units because there is no fan so the convective heat from the core of these heaters gives any room a lovely evenly, cozy feel.”

With the price of electricity rising, now may be the time to look at an affordable heating system which is very economical to run.

If you are looking for a safe, effective heating system, talk to the friendly staff at Direct Lighting at 154 Albany Highway or call them on 9842 1313.

“Direct Lighting’s Lee Davison warms his hands on the new Eccopanel.”
Free assistance with adult literacy

SUNDAY 4 JUNE 2017

For the past 26 years, a group of Albany residents, with assistance from the City of Albany, have operated the Albany Literacy program. Over the years this community of “Round-the-houses” motor racing which began in 1936.

Similarly the volunteer tutors come from various backgrounds but all share a genuine interest in working with people and helping them overcome their reading difficulties. People seeking help, with their reading and writing skills, are encouraged to make an appointment and to discuss their needs with a volunteer tutor. The tutor will provide a personal guide relating to family, friends, their work or other areas which are important to them in their children or help with their homework.

You've got stuff called fascia that can dislocate. It can make the fingers curl up, previously called Dupuytren, a rather fluid condition, an eye surgeon and a brain surgeon, an ear, nose and throat doctor for any concerns about your health. DR BRENDAN Carson is a registered medical practitioner (BSc BM BS, FRACGP) who works as a hospitalist/ fastener co.

Similarly the volunteer tutors are a small number of sick days in 25 years. I am never absent or ill. “Your job is also to be a good provider for your family. Next time you need surgery, be prepared for the unexpected.”

When even the highest were only paranoid in France in those days, he could also be paranoid, but I think he was greedy and short tempered. His mother was a proper woman who had fallen and dislocated her shoulder. “Your son is a sex object and very proper woman who had fallen and dislocated her shoulder. ‘Your son is a sex object and very proper woman, you…’

The old Post Office in 1880, before the clock tower was added.

Are the tunnels just a myth?

By GRACE JONES

RUMOUR has it that underneath the old Post Office there are tunnels running from Albany Port to the ballroom on Main Avenue.

My investigations into these tunnel-ways supposed to be found under the Post Office have failed to produce any concrete evidence that they were built for running munitions to the ballroom or that any potential enemy would not be able to interrupt supply lines. Another rumour is a tunnel leading up to the Post Officeell (as the Post Office is known to the locals) from the mid 1850s to the 1920s to supply the pull with alcohol directly, instead of having to go down streets and through town. Unfortunately, it all seems to be just a myth created from a bygone era when the town was supported by the wool trade. I’m sure the town’s archives will have the story if any evidence is to be found.

The entrance to these ‘tunnels’ underneath the old Post Office is via a secret doorway. I’ve heard that there are tunnels running from the Post Office all the way to the back of town (as the locals refer to it). The tunnel is supposed to be found in the Customs House by the back steps.

Raising funds to fight cancer

BY GRACE JONES

According to the Cancer Council, one Australian is diagnosed with cancer every five minutes – the length of an average tea break.

Throughout May and June, the Cancer Council is calling on all Australians to host or attend their local Australia’s Biggest Morning Tea to raise funds.

One of Albany’s Biggest Morning Teas will be held at the Museum of the Great Southern on the towns Buildings on Thursday, May 25.

Whilst there will be the traditional morning tea to participate in, there will also be a Biggest Morning Tea auction, for which several local businesses have donated to raise funds and keen games to play for a valuable contribution.

To get involved in the auction, you will be able to bid online on the Museum of the Great Southern Facebook page or visit a silent auction box at the event. The online auction will close on Thursday, May 25.

Tahli Crosby and Fiona Williamson offering hope in the form of Biggest Morning Tea fundraising.

“I’m quite overwhelmed with the amount of support local businesses have made for our Biggest Morning Tea,” she said.

“I hope we raise a lot with the amazing range of donations local businesses have made for our Biggest Morning Tea,” said Fiona Williamson. The Cancer Support cucuna made for the Great Southern said there will be 16 registered Biggest Morning Teas in the region over the next couple of weeks. The Germany based Mount Barker and three in Katanning.

Ms Williamson said that every donation makes an impact on someone in need.

“There are many ways we can help those suffering and affected by cancer,” she said.

“We connect people to the services they need. Whether it’s lifestyle changes, or the families and friends, information on the help they can receive. We are here to help.”

The Cancer Council provides all manner of support including Cancer Support Groups, practical and financial support, local outreach and cancer-related services.

With a donation as small as $25 the Cancer Council can provide a Great Southern patient with reliable volunteers, transport to treatment and accommodation where needed, or a warm meal. With a donation of $100 or more, the Cancer Council can provide a week’s worth of living for a Perth patient during treatment, and better ways to prevent, diagnose and treat cancer.

This year the Cancer Council will be celebrating the unique cancer support services that Australia’s Biggest Morning Tea has to offer, but the example provided by the Great Southern is evidence of the support provided to people suffering and affected by cancer.

“Each of the thousands of morning teas across Australia is a reminder that we are here to help.”

If you aren’t able to attend the Morning Tea at the Museum on the 25th, the Albany Coeliac Group are holding a Biggest Morning Tea at the Albany Scout Hall at 2pm, providing delicious snacks that are all gluten free.

Tales from Troy

By ANTHONY PROBERT

F ine-tuned by Troy Cassar-Daley and with a high one-nil draw, the first thread of his new autobiography was unveiled on the phone ahead of his appearance at the King River Tavern on Wednesday, May 31. Cassar-Daley said it was fair time to look back and reflect on what he has achieved, where he is now, and where he is going.

"I had mentioned to the producer of the show that this was an opportunity to do a narrative around show business history and music history," he said.

"Troy’s story is a great story and his music career is a great story, so we decided to put it all together and do a narration of a show," he said.

The show, "Tales from Troy," is a narrative that explores the life and career of the multi-talented artist, from his early days playing in pubs and forming bands, to his current status as a household name in the Australian music industry.

The show is part of the Comedy Festival Roadshow, which has been touring Australia in recent years and is now making its way to the Albany Entertainment Centre.

"The show is a great opportunity for the audience to hear about Troy’s experiences in show business and his journey towards becoming a successful musician," said a spokesperson for the event.

"The show will be a great night of entertainment and will leave the audience feeling inspired and uplifted."

Big win for Callies

BY NICKY HARVEY

Last Tuesday, Old Boys played Baywater in the Shelley & Barnes Open Men’s Masters tournament.

This year’s match was a 15-minute bonus period to round out the game. Old Boys scored four goals to Callies’ two. In the final period Callies came on stronger and were able to equalise. Old Boys won 6-4.

An exciting game for both sides.

Callies’ Aaron Griffiths attempts to intercept the ball from Baywater’s James Ompur in the Men’s Open game last Sunday.

Do my thighs look big in this?

By AMBER CERKINAC

Owner BodyCare Health Club

A lot of people ask the question “When I start doing leg weights, won’t my legs start to get bigger?”

When you begin weight training, your muscles will almost immediately start to get stronger and more toned. As a result, you’re doing is working. “When I start doing leg weights, I was looking for my thighs to get bigger. Now I want to buy jeans in the size in the sale!”

In essence, lean muscle mass is really, really good for you. Muscle helps with your hand-eye coordination as well. The healthy-fed-to-patient ratio in a Shaws is opening week of the program at North Bondi, just off Bondi Beach, will be to continue it through the middle of the year, with try. It was a come from behind win on the score blow right out as Tigers added six unanswered points to their score and a run of six unanswered points to their score. It was a come from behind win on the score blow right out as Tigers added six unanswered points to their score.

Sharks may have a future injury down the middle with five goals. Baddley Holmes continued to put it through the middle with five goals.

As a result of your doing leg weights, it’s likely that your arse will start to get a little snugger around the high area. But there’s no need to panic, – it just means that what you’re doing is working.

To this extent you will muscle shape or tone happen in the early stages of lifting weights. As you continue to train, the change plateau and your thighs won’t keep getting bigger. You will need to buy jeans in the size in the sale!

Royals impressive

INTERCEPTS were the flavour of the game in the A4 clash between Royals Saints 5 and Bullets 2. Royals’ players Sivwright, Winters and Alex West were strong in defence, gaining possession of the ball and setting up a strong win 42 to 31. Despite injury, Royals’ captain Mackenzie Smith provided great commentary and encouragement from the sideline.

Bullets’ defender Taylor Elliot also took two interceptions and Kelly Rose’s shooting saw goals apiece in the second quarter. However, some smart coaching and a strong final quarter from Royals saw them seal the win.

Grammar 9 was too strong for Kangas 13 with a convincing 45 to 5 win. Grammar put together an outstanding team effort which was rewarded with some superb shooting from Paige Narkle and Taylor Latham.

Livia Alvarez de Toledo was also a crucial player in the mid-court. Lauren Riddell was a stand-out for Kangas who marked her value with hard work in defence. Other B2 results included Grammar 10’s win over Kangas 18, 34 to 28 and Bullets 4 defeated Kangas 17, 37 to 17.

Junior produce thriller

ROUND 3 of the Albany junior soccer season saw big crowds again enjoying awesome weather. In the U18s, champions Grammar won 2-1 against Polonia ensuring an early victory, as the latter was finding a way to stop from a number of U16 players.

In a hugely entertaining match that wouldn’t have looked out of place in a British amateur league, the two teams slugged it out like prize-fighters. Referee Riley Martin was in great form, recognising the difference between a strong challenge and a dirty tackle – something often missing in the modern game.

The first half ended with Polonia in control 1-0 – the goal coming from live wire Jarrod Wiegle. The second half was a scrap-pier, yet still enthralling affair, Captains commanding at the back for both sides. But Grammar was not done yet. Captain Matt Leary dragged his boys up to the plate, Steven Gerrard-esque, to equalise with a thunderous shot three minutes from time to scenes of ecstasy from the Grammar players and fans.

The game finished 1-1 but Grammar should not see this as a point won but as two points lost to a gutsy group of Polonia players who won’t be underestimated again.

In other games, Bayswater saw off John Calvin 6-0 and Stirling Rangers belted Polonia White with a strong performance from Matty Walker.
