Vacant Frenchman Bay caravan park site favouring over sensitive Goode Beach lot

About two years ago, an application for a 30-unit resort at the van park was shelved after the association opposed its inclusion of 10 residential lots on the tourism-zoned site, sewerage plans and proposed sinking of two bore holes.

Mr Kinlay acknowledged the van park idea was "hypothetical" but said "it’s been quoted around Goode Beach."

"It’s got fantastic views which they wouldn’t have from Lot 660," he said. "They wouldn't disrupt our subdivision with traffic, and there’s a beach right there."

‘Goode plan, wrong place’

A GOODE BEACH lobby group says the de-funct Frenchman Bay Caravan Park site would be better for a five-star resort than Lot 660 La Perouse Road where the 51-unit project is controversially envisaged.

Frenchman Bay Association President Tony Kinlay said a strategic view of both the van park site and Lot 660 would confirm the former as the best for tourism development.

"The caravan park site would be ideal for the resort," he said of the block at Whalers Beach that has languished with no tourists for more than a decade.

SPERDING Street Stocks driver Peter Herbert didn’t know which way was up when he rolled his car in spectacular fashion at Mount Barker Speedway Club’s opening meet last weekend.

Not only did the seasoned competitor walk away from the crash, but he went on to win the event.

"I can remember feeling like I was floating, and thinking the impact was going to hurt," he said. "I honestly can’t remember how many times it rolled."

"One of the front wheels got ripped off, and when it landed it caught fire."

"How the car is still in one piece and still runs is beyond me."

Herbert’s son made the journey down from Perth to see his dad awarded the Speedway Sedans Western Australia Driver of the Year from Mt Barker Speedway, only to end up in the pits helping to get the car back on the track.

"Not only did they get me back out there, but somehow I won the bloody thing," Herbert said.
An Aussie and an Irishman

CHRIS THOMSON

WHEN Parliamentary Speaker Peter Wasse last week tried to give the President of Ireland a taste of the Great Southern, he shot at tribal wasps in a pub, but missed - much to the President’s merriment.

On October 11, President Michael Higgins became the first head of state to visit Western Australia’s joint houses of parliament, and Mr Wasse was on hand in the Legislative Assembly to serve the President a bottle of Albany-distilled whisky.

“He’s the only Irishman I’ve ever met who a toast,” the Albany MLA lamented this week.

But his wife and his assistant said they won’t have any trouble trying to raise $15,000 for the cause.

Rather than kill wasps - proposing the bottle of Limestone Distillery’s Darkie Winter Whisky as the lucky gift to Perth, Mr Wasse concluded the wasp was not the only wasp in the world, and author Darren Walker, who continued to be offered whisky by car.

Limestone Distillery’s Samantha Syne said he was delighted with the whisky’s presidential approval.

“According to some versions of history, Ireland is the home of whisky,” Mr Wasse said in a toast.

It’s not just fantastic, he said.

“Today, after this day was named ‘I’m missed the Southern Hemisphere’s’ by an influential whisky publication at a function in London.

To have whisky from our little, family-owned distillery here in Albany going to the President of Ireland, the home of Jameson, is a phenomenal thing,” Mr Wasse said.

“Mr Wasse again said his Limestone Distillery hand-tap on 20 October, and one of our local artists is featured in their tap, so I’m playing Albany everywhere I go.”

Mr Wasse penned a blog post titled “Almost every day is special,” which would be good for Albany everywhere I go.

Cancer Machine Resolve

The determination to see a radiation machine to support cancer patients having treatment in Perth or Bunbury was raised an ambitious $15 million for the cause.

Mary Williams began the Albany Radiation Therapy Project with the support of the Department of Health, the Department of Health, and the Department of Health.

She said she decided it was time enough was enough for cancer patients having treatment in Perth or Bunbury.

“Families are split, businesses are affected, and people are split,” the President of the Albany Radiation Therapy Project said.

Despite Ms Williams’ efforts, WA Country Health Service’s (WACHS) Regional Director David Naughton said a radiation machine was not on the cards for the region.

“A comprehensive cancer care service is available in WA,” Mr Naughton said.

The response from Great Southern communities has been overwhelming,” she said.

“With the current radiation machine in the Albany hospital, we are still able to support the current needs of the region,” Ms Williams said.

LITTLE Ruby Robertson has spent most of her six-and-a-half years of life in and out of hospitals and doctors’ appointments. Now in June, Ruby’s school has prioritised her needs and has employed a single step to Maccas.

Ruby and her family were out in support of McCa’s Day, which is a key fundraiser for the Ronald McDonald House charities, which supports regional families when they travel for medical treatment.

Ruby’s mum, Tamara, said the support was vital for helping to cope with Ruby’s long list of medical conditions and the ensuing appointments. She has such a complex medical history, she said.

“She was born with a disconnected and twisted bowel, and after her second surgery at two-years-old connected and twisted bowel, and after her second surgery at two-years-old we learned about the brain damage.”

For every Big Mac sold on McCa’s Day, $2 was donated to the Ronald McDonald House. "It really is a fantastic charity,” Tamara said.

“The work they do for regional families is amazing. By having your car parked in a local parking garage and committing to stay that’s affordable and supportive is phenomenal. It really is a fantastic charity.”

“With fuel, food, accommodation and medication expenses, it was essential to stay the heart. Simple things like having change for parking, and going to feed the meter when you’re at Princess Mary’s Hospital for hours at a time is just terrible. Even just finding a parking space is hard.”

“When your child’s medical condition takes priority, the simple things become mission. After hearing a referral to the Ronald McDonald House by one of the hospital nursing staff, Ruby and the family were able to stay there for a few nights. "Ronald McDonald House really does a fantastic job,” Tamara said.

In the third and final of our weekly features leading up to the close of local polls this Saturday, the Weekender looks closely at the 10 candidates running in the City of Albany election: Is there one specific thing you would do to improve the lives of ratepayers in your ward, around the City of Albany or across the Great Southern?'

Tony Demartaro
A former Busselton councillor from 2001 to 2005, Tony Demartaro says the City of Albany should get back to basics. ‘‘There’s 12 years ago when I was a councillor I was campaigning for drainage along Emu Point Road, and it still hasn’t happened,’’ he says.

''Rampers left road was fall of paddles during that time of the heavy rains. But go along now, and there’s still big paddles there. Why?’’

Ray Hammond
Two-term sitting councillor Ray Hammond says the council should work harder to get potential investors onto Albany’s surplus city land.

''As a city we must create new incentives for new businesses and industries that employ local people,’’ he says.

''We need to be more proactive, for example, release some redundant city land – we’ve got a role in it, in order to attract new business. Business ventures and services to our region.

''The potential of redundant land is significant, and we have had discussions with various industry groups that are looking to release to see if we can provide the right incentives to encourage people to move into Albany, particularly those organisations that are prepared to employ local people.''

Luke Pilkington
First-time council candidate Luke Pilkington says, “maintaining and protecting the environment is now more than ever, while keeping pressure down on rates” is at the top of his priority list.

''We have a big road network in Albany,’’ he says.

''We have some of the worst in the state and it needs fixing.’’

Pilkington’s campaign extends beyond paralleling the quality of road shoulders, and caravans’ says he is not overrun and poorly drained.

''I speak to every group and every part of week – we need to stop the road out and get out most of the day this way for a drink, just staying on top of what we’re getting, and we need to fix the roads from the ground up.

WEST WARD

Wayne Downes
First-time candidate Wayne Downes says he wants to put a focus on developments within Albany that preserves a return for the community.

''At the present moment, we seems to be doing all these investments and encouraging people to live here and come here as tourists, but we don’t seem to be getting anywhere. I think the answer is in that a great idea that’s still not got the view of a way to go.

''And the Camargue wine enterprise, not just the research base here also working with local businesses on building the technology.’’

Downes and the council needed to encourage the local economy to diversity from industries solely focused on the provision of services for ageing people.

Alison Geode

Finance sector veteran Alison Geode is a sitting councillor for West Ward who wants to pass the say for areas on her spending room that do not have bicycle paths and footpaths.

''If electronically I’m looking at working very hard towards footpaths and cycleways in the Albany region in particular and also at improving trails.’’

''Nowadays, if you put in a subdivision, you’ve got to put in footpaths, drainage and cycleways before you can get approval for your subdivision. We should have the same for residential areas.''

''Geode says that consequently there’s “a serious disparity” of infrastructure in the areas that most need it, while also noting: “They’ve got drainage and cycleways now, but there’s no footpaths and it’s all overgrown grass, and it’s not even use.’’

Get a paddle on for health

SUPPORTERS of the Men’s Resource Centre got their kayaks, canoes, paddleboards and shaper boat out in celebration of Mental Health Week over the weekend. Up the Creek with a Paddle saw more than 25 people in their life jackets and paddle for 2km up the Kalgan River from the Albany Rowing Club.

Men’s Resource Centre Chief Executive Officer Grant Westthorp said the event was a success. “It got people interacting with each other, which is so important for mental health. “At the end of the day the smile on everybody’s faces was great.”

“My Week in Focus” participant Tarang Chawla said it was great. “It was good exercise, good fun and a good message.”

“I want to make people aware that mental wellbeing is just as important as physical wellbeing.”

Mr Westthorp confirmed that Up the Creek with a Paddle will be running again next year, and a paddle club will be starting in February.

A personal insight to help prevent family violence

VICTORIAN anti-Tarang Chawla will share the tragic story of his sister’s death from domestic violence at a Family Violence Prevention Conference next week.

The conference will take place on October 26 and is open to all interested members of the community.

Mr Chawla has been dedicated to ending violence against women since the death of his 23-year-old sister in 2015 and his efforts culminated in a nomination for Young Australian of the Year 2017 in Victoria.

His keynote address at the Family Violence Prevention Conference will give a personal insight to understanding causes of family violence and what needs to be done to prevent it.

Chair of the Albany Family and Domestic Violence Action Group, Peter Sims, said Mr Chawla has drawn on his personal experience to become a strong advocate and a leading figure among local professionals and community members.

“Tarang’s story is heart wrenching and he has drawn on his personal experience to become a strong advocate and a leading figure in Australia in the prevention of violence against women.”

Mr Chawla said: “We are very fortunate to have someone of Tarang’s calibre in Albany to educate and inspire social change in our community.”

This year’s conference theme is bystander action. It will focus on the role that individuals and the broader community can play in responding to the attitudes, beliefs, practices, policies and behaviours that perpetuate violence against women.

In the past 12 months, there have been over 600 reports to the police in the Great Southern, and it is estimated this represents only 20 per cent of incidents, due to the low levels of reporting. Conference tickets including lunch are $55 each and can be purchased or online at paperbarks.com.au.

Jack Mazzoletti – Denmark’s man of many talents

ANNE SIMPSON

DENMARK’S pioneers were a tough breed of people, with Jack Mazzoletti (1877-1950) remembered as one of the district’s most prominent settlers.

Millars Brothers had managed their milling operations out of Denmark in 1904 and later sold the distillery business in 1908.

By 1911, land was being opened in the former land of Denmark, and Jack, his wife Maria and four children took up a block on Scindale Road. The plan was to grow vegetables, and although the land may have been previously selected, it was not without its challenges with heavy soil.

Jack learnt early how to make charcoal from the burnt trees and scrub. There was a ready market in Albany and Kojonup, and although he was a hard worker, Jack could see the value of the high-quality jarrah and karri timber that had been felled and discarded.

The early pioneers faced huge challenges. Following Millars’ departure three years before, the town had become almost unrecognizable when new settlers entered looking for land.

They struggled in the high rainfall district, making sure every drop of water was preserved, as well as ensuring the children had access to water. They were also faced with an abundance of wild flowers, which were used for making jam.

- Mary has been remembered as Jack’s daughter.

Jack expected an excellent harvest, but the sudden storm washed into the Denmark River, destroying flowers.

It was an adaption in more ways than one. Shattered by this event, Maria became very ill and died suddenly at the age of 35. Jack worked to raise his young family, and later learned his businesswoman, who produced another four children.

He continued to make decisions for the family, including potatoes, to make money, including bacon and cream production. The milk was stored in large vats and sold to the local supermarkets.

Over the years Jack put in many hours of hard work, and the mill was eventually sold in 1961.

- History of the Bridge:
  - Denmark Bridge was built in 1915.

AN OFFICIAL census held in January 1917 reported the number of vehicles using the single-lane Denmark Bridge ‘at the rate of over one per minute.’

The Denmark Bridge Port formally recorded, ‘On numerous occasions it was necessary for vehicles to stop and allow other vehicles from the opposite direction to clear the bridge.’

Between 8.44am and 11.04am, at least 60 vehicles used the bridge, of which 56 had Perth number plaques. Fifty-five of these were travelling from the Albany direction.

Compared with vehicles from elsewhere, local traffic passing over the Bridge was relatively in minority, despite the fact that it was a very busy day.

The reason for the delay was to prepare the need for a footbridge to safeguard pedestrians trying to walk across the bridge, as the bridge was not supported by a structure that was particularly challenging during summer.

The present bridge was built in 1915.

Dogs’ day for cancer support

ALBANY’S inaugural Bark for Life saw dog lovers gather at Foundation Park on Sunday in support of local animal rescue and survivors. Celebrating the caring quality of dogs during their owner’s cancer experience, the day was a chance to recognise cancer survivors, patients and their four-legged friends. Relay for Life Great Southern Charterpalais was the venue for the event.

“She may not really well,” she said.

“People were踊跃ing right up until the end of the day. “We had people continuously walking for the event and most stayed the whole day. One lady didn’t have a dog but wanted to participate anyway,” said Ms Powell. Burke said Bark for Life is in to become an annual event.

“We got a good feel for what worked,” she said.

“A date is still to be set, but Bark for Life will definitely be back in 2018.”

BERNIE and Keith are the father and son team of BG & KE Russ Post-Tack and Mini-Digger Services.

They have four Post Tacks available to cover both large and small jobs, including houses and sheds. The Post-Tack is an all-purpose loader of smaller size to a bobcat, but with the ability to make it possible for the machine to cut over the ground with minimal surface disturbance. They have good ground clearance and the ability to work productively on virtually any soil conditions including stumps and sand.

All machines are capable of bucket work and lifting and are equipped with a drum system. They have three Harley Haulers which are suitable for self-contained, clean-up around building sites, are excellent for loading muck or topsoil and preparing or recontouring road base or gravel driveways. The ability of the Harley Tacks to grade, level and condition the soil reduce time spent preparing the site, by emulating, in a single pass, tasks such as building borders, trenches and roads.

Other machines they have available include a 950C loader, Cat 953 Tracked Loader, 7000 Series Storrie excavator and a 13000 Series Komatsu excavator complete with all buckets and other bucket Tooth, making them suitable for working on drainage, trenches and ponds, and finishing other driveways. They also have a half-track, 10-wheel tip-truck to deliver loads of soil and compost/organic materials to the road base, or to remove the rubbish.

For an obligation-free quote, please call Bernie on 0489 321 542 or Keith on 0459 221 385.

A Tasmanian Aboriginal community’s culturally significant and closely guarded tradition, shell-stringing, is currently being exhibited at the Museum of the Great Southern.

Kanalaritja: An Unbroken String from the Tasmanian Museum and Art Gallery features a variety of beautiful, delicate and rare shell necklaces, created by Tasmanian Aboriginal ancestors in the 1800s. The Museum of the Great Southern Regional Museum Rachael Wilsher-Saa said Kanalaritja: An Unbroken String is accompanied by a dedicated publication featuring a range of eye-catching and informative features and provides a definitive account of the unique cultural practice of shell-stringing.

THE ORIGINAL & THE BEST – RAY WHITE ALBANY
After many months of renovations, last Thursday night was time to celebrate the opening of the new Solahart Albany & Albany Eco House showroom at 9 Minna Street. The event was held to thank businesses and staff for their hard work to help complete the building renovation over the last 8 months. The building started in an old shed, and the transformation to a new showroom with the help of local trades & businesses is remarkable.

“We want to thank every person and business who contributed to our building big and small. We were proud to work with a great group of local people.”

Sharing the building are two local business Solahart Albany & Albany Eco House, which have been owned and operated by Darren & Jessica Wood for the last 2 1/2 years. Each offers its own high quality products, expertise and services. Moving into a bigger premises was an important step for the business. Having a customised space allows us to display more of our product range, including Albany Eco House’s new range of plastic-free and reduced waste living products as well as having space to consult with clients and help them find the right product to suit their needs.

You can drop in and check out the new showroom at 9 Minna Street from 8.30 am to 5 pm during the week (6 pm on Thursdays) and 9 am to 12.30 pm on Saturdays, or call 98416171.

The five-month metamorphosis of 16 local dancers, some with two left feet, into polished artistic dancers shows that no matter how many times of toil one undergoes, beauty can emerge.

Before June, when he started preparing for an upcoming production The Beauty Index, Denmarkian Carl Hosley’s sole experience with dance was as a drummer at music festivals. “I really wanted to push myself out of my comfort zone and see an empty room for my own small body,” he tells The Observer.

“I wanted to show them that they could do anything they want to.

“With that motivation, I feel really quite good. I wanted to push and instead of being scared, tried it. It’s so much fun.”

The opening production, choreographed by Annette Curnick, is billed as a “visual feast of strength, vulnerability and visual poetry.”

The show features two visiting male performers from the Western Australian Academy of Performing Arts, and the other a professional dancer from Perth.

“This production is a middle of our per- formance, then the other 16 of us are mainly from Denmark and we’ve got the group from Albany every week to rehearse,” Hosley says.

“It is quite dark, quite intense, at times but then it’s balanced with the sense of beauty.”

“From terror there can be beauty and moment of light and happiness that balance those mo- ments out.”

Lyceum’s benefactor com- pany has echoed in the movies, making the dancers have experienced since May.

“We’ve all had different things go on, one of our dancers had some really serious health issues and had to go to Perth for some treatment,” Hosley says.

“You’ve been around and that supported him. There was a recent death in the Denmark community that had a big impact on us, and this group was really supportive and bonding, but also a lot of fun.”

The guys will perform at the Western Denmarkian studying dance at the Western Australian Academy of Performing Arts, and the other an Australian professional dancer from Perth.

Continually will officially open the Friday, 5pm at the Vancouer Art Centre and embraces the various landscapes on the Murchison River, in the midwest of WA.

Ms Davies has worked on the project since 2010 and has spent two to four weeks each year visiting a particular spot on the Murchison to create her unique art work.

“It became an annual ritual,” Ms Davies said.

“I love the feeling and turning of the tree branches. It’s

‘They tell a story, of seasonal change, floods and droughts and all growth.’

Ms Davies’ exhibition will include drawings, mixed paints, photography and textiles.

An eye-opening feature of the Continuity exhibition will be the ten trees the artist has photographed and placed in an acrylic box, surrounded by her landscapes from the gallery ceiling.

“I take a river gum rubber each year in cakas. Ms Davies said.

“I enjoy exploring the tree cause I think we are witnesses

EXPRESSIONS of emotional release from cliteers and staff of Albany Halfway House Assocation, was the theme of the Art Exhibition at the Crewe last week.

The Life on Track art exhibition of various paintings and drawings was the front of the theme for the community support, families and friends of mental health sufferers to its official opening.

Albany Mayor Deanne Washington opened the exhibition and voiced his own heartfelt story of dealing with mental health after losing his brother when he was 34 years old.

“Going through different segments in life can create problems with mental health,” he said.

CAR lovers are nippy divas – or at least that’s what they like to think when it comes to what they drive or sit in the shed or up on the ramp when it’s been raining outside. They’ll often tell you that their car is a part of their family and they take care of it as well as their children. HR Holden is an example of this kind of car, being well known for its reliability and timeless design.

One thing that often happens when people are driving or sitting in their HR Holden is that they start thinking about the car’s interior, specifically the dashboard. The HR Holden has a dashboard that is quite unique, featuring a central speedometer and a tachometer. The speedometer is divided into two sections, one for the front and one for the rear, and the tachometer is used to check the engine speed.

One of the most common things that HR Holden owners will do is to change the oil in their cars. This is because the HR Holden is a very reliable car, and the owner wants to make sure that it is running as smoothly as possible. The oil change process is relatively simple, but it is important to follow the proper steps to ensure that the engine is functioning correctly.

Another thing that HR Holden owners will do is to change the air filter. This is because the HR Holden is designed to run on a wide variety of fuels, and the air filter helps to ensure that the correct amount of air is being delivered to the engine. Changing the air filter is a simple process, but it is important to use the proper filter to ensure that the engine is functioning correctly.

HR Holden owners will also take their cars for regular maintenance checks. These checks are important because they help to ensure that the HR Holden is running as smoothly as possible. The checks will include checking the oil level, the coolant level, and the battery levels. These checks are relatively simple, but they are important to ensuring that the engine is functioning correctly.

One of the most important parts of maintaining an HR Holden is to keep the car clean. This is because the HR Holden is designed to run on a wide variety of fuels, and the engine needs to be clean to ensure that it is running as smoothly as possible. The owners should regularly wash down the exterior of the car to remove any dirt or grime that may have built up over time.

In conclusion, HR Holden owners take great care of their cars and invest time and money into maintaining them. By following the steps outlined above, they can help to ensure that their HR Holden is running as smoothly as possible and that it will continue to provide them with the same level of performance that they have come to expect.

THIS Kelvin Sohey Memorial race for Mount Barker Speedway Club proved to be a day of results and racing.

Track conditions were perfect for races, with little wind and high visibility.

Mr Barry Speedway Vice President Dean Trotter said the presence of many junior competitors were seen at an opening event.

“Everyone’s standard for presentation was excellent this year,” he said.

“Cars were ready to roll. It was almost up to see them turn for practice, but that’s racing.”

According to Trotter the first half of the day can mostly withoutincident, with the exception of first-time raceer Matthew Alamo losing mechanical issues but still looking forward to the rest of the day.

“The afternoon brought out the problems,” he said.

“Peter Marbot had his pretty spectacular roll start in the race. One thought he’d he take a more track after that.”

Taj Coleman in Junior Sohey had his first roll over as well. He was fine but came into the pits for a quick inspection.

“There were some other mechanical issues in Production Sedans and Super Sedans too.”

“Overall it was great for the crowds to keep that pressure during the delay.”

Despite great performances from Mr Barry racers, Noo Akered from fascinating come through with the Kelvin Sohey Memorial Shield.

“Noo came back in every heat he raced in, andinded at 144 points for the day.” Trotter said.

“Awards up for grabs were age group championship, coach awards, the Annual All Plant St Maude and the In-Club Junior and Senior Awards. Some one can total at the end.”

“Over night winners were Chris Pavoliv,” who won the Kevin Sobey Memorial race the previous night, with the exception of first-time raceer Matthew Adams who won the Supersport division.

Mr Allen said that Albany Swimmers will be heading up to Queens-

“Then they’ll only have 20 points after one round.”

“Cars were ready to roll.

“The Sporton-Redmond, Star award and the In-Club Junior and Senior Awards. Some one can total at the end.”

“The afternoon brought out the problems,” he said.

“The Annette O’Neill was fine but came into the pits for a quick inspection. We live in a society where people are built during recovery. We live in a society where people are familiar with.”

“No one thought he’d be back on the first-time racer Matthew Adams who won the Supersport division.”

“The afternoon brought out the problems,” he said.

ALBANY Cricket Association returns to its home ground to kick off the new season on Saturday June 10, the first time in two years since the club has been able to play on its turf wickets.

ACA president Terry Eaton said the new pitch was a long time coming after two seasons with no cricket on its turf wickets.

“It’s pretty exciting to be back at the North Road precinct this season,” he said. “It’s fantastic for our players to play on home ground.

“We’re playing on two of the new wickets this weekend, but the third won’t be ready for another six weeks or so.”

Eaton also said players would need to adjust quickly to the new turf during matches.

“Players always need to adjust to where they’re playing,” he said. “Pitch conditions are always changing from game to game.

“That’s just cricket.

Over the break, the ACA has seen some player and team changes that Eaton said will make the season closer, particularly in A grade.

“Players are back in A grade and are new guys on the block, so they’ve got something to prove,” he said.

“Railways have been knocked back into an even league with the others after losing a few players and Maryparks have a few new strong players too.

“Royals are back in A grade and are the new guys on the block, so they’ve got something to prove,” he said.

“Mount Barker Bulls Cricket Club have joined the ACA and have also bolstered their ranks.

“It’s great to have Mt Barker join the fray this season,” Eaton said. “They’ve grown enough to have teams in both A and B grade, so hopefully that will continue.

“We’ve still got 18 teams playing this season and seven playing A grade.

“On top of that we’ve also got brand new turf wicket covers for the start of the season.

“We desperately needed new ones, and we were lucky enough to get the help from CBH Group.

“Saturday will see Mount Barker playing Maryparks at Summer Park, Collingwood Park take on reigning premiers Railways, and Royals taking on the newcomers at North Road in B grade.

“In B grade, Royals and Narrogin will play their round at Collingwood Park, while Maryparks will host Royals and Collingwood Park will host Railways at North Road.”
