Students remember

SCHOOL students from across the Great Southern are commemorating in Albany’s city centre this morning for a combined schools commemoration to mark 100 years since the signing of the armistice that ended World War I.

The service is one of many being held in Albany over the coming days leading up to Remembrance Day.

It also winds up school involvement with Albany being the only school across the South West region to commemorate 100 years since the commencement of WWI and the Gallipoli landing.

Flieders Park Primary year six students Merrick Watts and Savannah Combes are those of more than 100 from that school attending the service and said they all feel proud to be a part of it.

“It looks good to be part of Anzac because all of these people... who gave their lives for it were important,” Merrick said.

“This is my first year to be part of Anzac and I’m really excited. It’s a great privilege,” Maggie said.

Cancer cash raincheck

In Parliament on Tuesday, Nationals Federal Member for O’Connor Rick Wilson called for a recommitment by the McGowan Government to improving cancer treatment to the Great Southern.

STATE Health Minister Roger Cook said earlier in the week, the McGowan Government had committed $14 million to the purchase of a bunker for radiotherapy equipment.

Mr Wilson said it was the experience back in 2009 in Bundaberg that Mr Cook was talking about.

“At the time the facilities were in place, even though the $14 million had been committed, the equipment was not purchased.”

Mr Wilson said the WACHS had continually stated the purchase of this equipment was off the table for them at the time.

“Our most recent experience is that we’re pretty quick smart,” Mr Wilson said.

Mr Cook said at that time the WACHS had continually stated the purchase of this equipment was off the table for them.

“We can’t guarantee it, but we’re doing the best we can to secure this facility,” he said.

Mr Wilson said the purchase of radiotherapy equipment in the Great Southern was an opportunity for patients to access this medical treatment in their own region.

“I understand that the Federal Member for that area has got political amin New Zealand, or there’s a Federal election in the wind and... promises of funding in different parts of the community I guess, as part of that... "It’s the season," he gibed.

“From that perspective, we welcome the Federal Government’s proposal to purchase the equipment associated with this particular machine.”

“Buy Mr Speaker, some people here said that this is similar to providing a ladder to help someone with a saddle but no horse.”

“This is similar to providing a ladder to help someone with this particular machine,” Mr Wilson said.

Mr Cook said it was one thing to buy the equipment “the Government’s share” of the expense would be a ladder to help but the greatest cost of operating it.

Our most recent experience in terms of funding the construction of a bunker for this equipment was the experience back in 2009 in Bundaberg,” he said.

Health centre land deal

Gowdy Jones

A NEW health centre is a step closer to fruition following a donation by Albany's Curbingham family.

A representative from the Curbingham family presented to the Community Committee at its October 27 meeting.

The Curbingham's donation has allowed WACHS regional director Ross Robertson to finalise the development of the new health centre and move forward with the project.

Shelagh Banner, the son of the late Patricia Curbingham, said that having the land donated allowed the project to get under way.

"It’s important to help the younger generations understand," Ms Banner said.

A report to councillors recommended the land be used to support a new WACHS health centre.

In council documents presented to the Community Committee the week of October 17 meeting, WACHS regional director Ross Robertson said that having the land donated allowed them to get under way on the development of the new health centre in the Albany Town Square.

The State Government has put the ring road Number 1 on the list of the free roadworks provided for funding from anywhere in Australia.

“Finding it difficult to find anything anywhere in Australia,” he said.

The business plan and everything that would be done has now gone in to the Federal Government (Commonwealth funding).

Shelagh Banner is continuing with the design work this week. She said that when the funding dollars come through it should be straightforward.

Mr Robertson said that WACHS regional director Ross Robertson was in contact with the State Government to get the ring road Number 1 on the list of the free roadworks provided for funding from anywhere in Australia.

IN THE wake of Nyungu Police inspector Sandy Vincent warned firearms owners and ammunition from a Nyungu man’s property. Great Southern District police inspector Danny Vincent announced on Tuesday a new operation targeting complacency.

Operation Bhutan began on Monday night and it will take weeks, and will involve police officers conducting security inspections and physical and audio checks of armed owner’s properties.

Inspector Vincent said the fines of the previous operation were successful but he wanted to educate the locals about firearms.

Un fortunately, what we’re finding is firearms owners who are not aware of their responsibilities,” he said.

“One of our bigger concerns is firearms falling into the wrong hands.”

Inspector Vincent said owners of firearms were not to know comply with firearms storage regulations by storing their weapons in unlocked and unoccupied properties.

On the day before the final decision by the council at a later date. The plan shows a number of features that displays trend grassed terraces where plants like Norfolk Pines and El tisco are used in the Northern District recreation area, their offices, Great Southern District and Albany.

The render does not show the existing trend grassed terraces that have been on the beach for 10 years.

But a City spokesman said The Weekender’s plan would be removed.

“After the finalisation of the plan design on page three of the plan, lines the restrictions of the freehold that displays trend grassed terraces.”

The Weekender’s plan shows only concept plans.

“The Weekender” said wood carver Darrel Fearon who is the render does not feature the foreshore’s existing usage areas and that it will continue.

More women wanted

CHRIS THOMSON

AGRICULTURE Minister Alannah MacTiernan has vaccinated defended her rejection of six recommended appointments because they missed the quotas on the grounds that every application from an all-male selection panel was for a man.

In the Legislative Council on October 31, Agricultural Region MLC Rick Markert told Ms MacTiernan there had been calls for her to reconsider the recommendations after expressions of interest had been called on March 8.

He asked how many men and women had applied for the three committees that oversee State funding for the cattle, sheep and grain industries.

Ms MacTiernan said she was getting less correspondence on the matter from the Pastoralists and Graziers Association of Western Australia.

On September 11 in the Upper House, Ms MacTiernan said she had rejected every recommendation by the six all-male appointments committee – for new members to the three funding bodies had been for men.

Ms MacTiernan explained that of 21 current committee members, 19 were men.

On October 31, she said the Legislative Council to consider “that the ratio of men and women in this day and age” such make-up dominates “merit-based” committees.

“It is simply not acceptable and, quite frankly, I think it is as bad as the time when we were in this state to suggest that there are simply not sufficient women of merit to order to get better than 20 to one,” she added.

She said a second round of applicants had drawn 15 from men, 13 of whom had previously thrown their applications into the ring.

Five applications were received from men who on the first round had been recommended for appointment. The sixth appointment at the time has now been reappointed with a male applicant.

Ms MacTiernan said the “gender ratio than 20 to one,”

“It is simply not accept-

Whale tour support

NEARLY 400 Albany primary students will have the opportunity through Albany Retravision to visit the Whaling Station next week for free — in celebration of the station’s 40th anniversary.

The Whaling Station at Albany Retravision on North Road have each put forward time to visit Albany’s Historic Whaling Station at no cost to their families.

Whaling Station general manager Elise van Gorp said students would visit next Thursday and enjoy a variety of whaling-related activities.

“It is wonderful to have these locally established businesses offer support, which will provide an educational opportunity to students without a cost to families,” she said.

Bike licence changes

In an effort to bring Western Australia in line with other facilitated-monthly-late-paying systems, new rules now completing a registry-specific focal point to stressing their practical driving assessment.

New requirements to complete an R-class licence were put into effect on Monday, with new rules restructured to pass the hazard perception test after holding their licence for a minimum of six months.

After passing the test, riders will have 12 months to complete the driving assessment before actually performing the practical assessment to remove the restrictions on R-class riders.

REGIONAL Western Australia’s first ever pro-qing-down community mental health service was established last week, providing six sites across the state helping children and adolescents, has been launched.

Students come together to Remember war heroes

About 3,000 school students from 26 schools across the Great Southern region will come together in Albany this Thursday to remember our country’s war heroes in a combined schools commemoration for the Centenary of Armistice.

Following a similar schools event in 2015 to commemorate 100 years since the Anzacs landed at Gallipoli, the event will begin with a parade on York Street at 10am before the students assemble in Anzac Peace Park for the 10.30am service.

For more information about the project and the schools that took part, visit www.albany.wa.gov.au

Fair fills town square

ALBANY Town Square was filled to capacity with stalls and festival goers on Saturday for the annual Green Fair on the Square.

People took advantage of the sunshine to walk from stall to stall withodie bags in one hand and refreshing glasses in the other.

Kids made waves from native plants with the Eco Faeries or danced along to Happy Feet Fitness while other folk enjoyed coffee or perused through the Pots of XPotential stalls.

The architect definitely thought outside of the box for this build and the results were spectacular.

I had plenty of friends on the Maddington Beach Board, but a team that united the forces of water and mountain views and combined it with a newly painted design block, which was an achievement of the highest calibre, so it was well

The choice of materials reflects that - the weathered horizons, the recycled bricks - all fit in with the surroundings houses, but it’s bold, without being too bold. It means the plan was only ever drawn up with one builder in mind, and it was Russell Schlager, who said he could count on the support of the Schlager Group.

It’s clearly been built with the love and care as if it was their own home, he said.

The beauty of this property is that you get down to beach and get the sand between your toes.

Dwarf cattle has advantages

Gorse is considered one of Australia’s worst weeds. This prickly pest is highly invasive with a great potential to spread, causing both agricultural and environmental impacts. As part of an ongoing commitment to gorse eradication in the Albany region, South Coast NRM have limited funding available to treat gorse on private and public land.

Landholders and managers are encouraged to have gorse infestations treated on their properties. Priority will be given to sites threatening native bushland and, particularly, waterways including Yakamia Creek. To find out more about Gorse and other weeds in our region including Yakamia Creek. The University of Western Australia, and an international team of researchers have published some interesting findings in regards to dwarf cattle breeds. Researchers found that dwarf cattle breeds are better at adapting to higher climates using different heat tolerance mechanisms than standard breeds.

“Standard size cattle breeds are less able to cope with higher temperatures but reach their tolerance limit under extreme tropical conditions, while the dwarf breeds have adapted to changes in their genes,” Dr Elayadeth-Meethal said.

The research will open up new ways in assessing heat stress tolerance and breeding for sustainable livestock production, especially under changing climates. — With credit to UWA

Movember offers the unique opportunity to participate in the world’s biggest male health awareness campaign. It’s all about men’s health matters, and the Movember Foundation is the only charity in the world that exists to save men’s lives through innovative programs and strategies. So if you’re feeling appreciative about needing a Mo, you’ll be surprised by the generosity of people you know and strangers you meet along the way.

Movember is all about men’s health issues that throughout history have been ignored. It’s all about the strategies the Movember Foundation uses to promote men’s health awareness. How special is this location? Lower King lifestyle without all the work! 4/266 Middleton Road
This would be an ideal 1st home, located just a short walk to shops, schools & close to town – this 3x1 has large beds, a huge semi-enclosed patio & games room. Not only is the house good size, it comes on an 886m2 block & has a dbl lock-up gge. The block is nice and level, has a double garage at the rear of the lot, and it is 812m2 (that is a good sized block). It’s convenient to shops and transport and is priced to sell. Call Rita McLean now to arrange a good look at this block. (ZY284)

Huge 1139m2 block with highway frontage. It’s level, which makes it an easy build block for your home and several sheds. (ZMK781)

KATANBERG

KATANBERG’s latest exhibition, Machines and Makers, attests the notion that sehing ma-Chines had changed the lives of women at home.

Curator of Machines and Makers Joelle van der Merwe said it was a special opportunity for her neighbour’s collection of 200 old domestic sewing machines that she learned about the impact the device had on women during the world wars.

She said her neighbour had bought a few sewing machines during World War II and decided not to sell them for them ever since.

“That was the starting point, really,” Ms van der Merwe said of the exhibition.

The Curator of Machines and Makers is at the Katering Art
Gallery until November 24.

Ms van der Merwe described as “abso-

“A stitch in time” which is projected behind a real created an animation of mice, machines, and even animations works such as paintings of sewing ally,” Ms van der Merwe said of the exhibition.

“I didn’t realise that the domestic sewing machine had changed the lives of women so much— they sewing machine had changed the lives of women during the world wars.

Mentorship up for grabs

The 2019 Regional Teacher Mentorship will provide 30 teachers from across Australia with the opportunity to join Bell Shakespeare’s Senior management for four days of specialist training in teaching Shakespeare. They will also collaborate with teachers from regional and remote areas, and the Shakespeare Company’s Education team.

Denmark’s Arts & Entertainment office provides a venue for the week-long program to support their continued learning. Bell Shakespeare’s Marketing and Community director Peter Clare said the mentorship was a big opportunity for teachers from other regions, and see Bell Shakespeare’s headquarters for four days of specialist training in teaching Shakespeare before November 26.

The mentorship will run from Thurs November 8 - Sun November 11.

The group has a wide range of talents and interests, which is evident when looking at their plans for after the final show.

Frontman Max Ayres plans to pursue musical theatre, studying at WA Academy of Performing Arts (WAPA) next year.

The same goes for backing singer Mollie Kennewell, who plans to enrol in a Bachelor of Music Education, hoping to study musical theatre as well.

Oliver Yellin is going to study music at university, with plans to go onto aStripe career.

The band said it’s a very exciting time to be alive, and is looking forward to performing again.

The band had hard at work in November.

Roaring trade at Torbay markets

By Jordyn Wright

A wide variety of stalls surrounding the historic building and adjacent parks were all on display for shoppers to carefully appraise and buy.

THE Torbay Hall market was a maze of stalls with art, craft, antiques and food vendors allTrading stalls around the hall were a flurry of activity as shoppers perused the wares. One stall, handmade aromatherapy products, was particularly popular as customers sampled the scented soaps on display.

The market is held on Sunday mornings and is one of the many events that bring life to the area surrounding the historic building.

From BG’s Kitchen

Fried green tomatoes, Geoff’s way

I love to throw this together Southern US inspired dish whenever our vegetarian friends come over… it is really morish, like a vegetarian fried chicken! Green tomatoes are firmer and keep their integrity when placed under an extreme heat. You can ask your greengrocer to source them, pick out the very under-ripe tomatoes from what’s available, or simply pick them from your own garden before they ripen. Historically, fried green tomatoes would be coated in cornmeal and fried in bacon lard (not so great for my veggie friends!), so this is my twist on the traditional.

Ingredients

- Fried Green Tomatoes
  - 2 green tomatoes, sliced 3mm
  - 100ml buttermilk
  - Cajun spice, to taste

- Cajun Chilli and Orange Dressing
  - 2 grilled red and green chillies, deseeded and sliced
  - Juice of one orange
  - Juice of half a lemon
  - Zest of one orange, skinned
  - 1/3 cup sweet corn, cooked
  - 1/2 avocado, diced
  - 1/2 cup cooked rice
  - Greek yoghurt
  - 2 tablespoons natural/good herbs – I use parsley
  - Handful chopped fresh, soft herbs – I use parsley

Method

Start by preparing your tomatoes, slice them thinly and then dip each slice into the buttermilk. Set up your buttermilk and plain flour in two separate bowls. Heat the oil in your medium pot or fryer to 180 degrees. Gently coat each slice of tomato in the buttermilk and then the plain flour in a thick layer. Place the slices in the fryer or fryer, and fry until golden brown, and remove to a rack to drain excess fat. Before serving, season with the Cajun spice and push it right up the heat. You can adjust the citrus as well as the spice to suit. I haven’t specified an amount for the spice because this is really up to you.

As the tomatoes are frying, make the dressing. To do this, you will need to add all ingredients (except for the herbs and sliced chilli) to a blender and blitz until just before plating. Toss through the salad and fried tomatoes in Cajun and cajun spice, or salt if you are wary of the heat. Garnish with fresh tomatoes on top. Feeling fancy? Garnish with fresh tomatoes on top. Feeling fancy? Garnish with fresh tomatoes on top. Feeling fancy? Garnish with fresh tomatoes on top. Feeling fancy? Garnish with fresh tomatoes on top.
Bug bites collector

Over the next little while, we’ll take a look at some of our favourite classic cars from the past few years. Here’s one from June 22, 2017.

“I WAS lucky enough to catch a monster salmon this week. Over the past few months, I have caught a few big salmon, but this one was by far the biggest I have ever seen.”

My row and I estimate the fish was about 20kg, with a 1.5m girth. We were fishing from a boat off Leith, and the fish was caught using a live squid as bait. The fish was released without harm.

We are also proud of the fact that we have caught a monster salmon.

The author expresses his excitement about the salmon he caught. The article highlights the thrill of fishing and the joy of catching a large fish.

ALBANY SPEEDWAY

THE Albany Speedway Club will honour one of the club’s original members next Saturday with the running of the Noel Pearson Memorial.

The Noel Pearson Memorial is awarded to the club member who earns the highest points across the night, and last year’s joint winners Hayden Mortimer (Juniors) and Jason Batchelor (Productions) will be wanting to take it out again.

It is expected the Formula 125’s will have a strong field again, with last start winner Bill Beeck at the top of the list.

With seven BOG Stocks at their first meeting the new division is likely to have a few new drivers trying their hand at speedway and should provide plenty of action.

Looking to gain every bit of experience on their home track will be the Junior Sedans as they prepare for the Western Australian Junior Title being held in January.

Joining the local division will be the left hand drive, V8 powered AMCAs and will see drivers from across the state converge on Albany as they battle it out for points in their club championship.

Also on the program will be the Production Sedan and Street Stocks.

Happy faces at Katanning

A FANTASTIC atmosphere on show, last Saturday, the 127th Katanning Agricultural Show was a well-attended success.

Cars were parked for many blocks from the showgrounds to the centre of the main oval and the Dog jumping contest did not disappoint. The winner of the day was a four-year-old Kelpie/Italian, who jumped an impressive 2.3 metres.

Kinights run home

THE Great Southern’s first two games for the season at the Inter-College Equestrian Championships were a great start to the competition in the Dressage WA Award, the Espoir Perpetual Award and the Magpies’ Jasmyne Jones took the Magpies’ Espoir Perpetual Award.

The general consensus among the riders was that the focus on the challenges with the new competition format helped them to make some adjustments and gain some additional confidence at the same time.

KNIGHTS powered home in the second half against SWANBACH Basketball Association after an early goal in the first match on Tuesday night to win by 11 points.

Thunder started the match strong as Jack- son Shaw scored four points within the first five minutes.

Both teams fought hard for their chance to get their hands on the ball, with Knights’ Ryan Wood and Thomas Ed- wards finding their rhythm in the second half.

During the second half, Thunder made an early impression on the arena.

But with the skills of both teams evenly matched, the fragrance continued until Knights began to edge Thunder out of the game.

By full-time, Knights cemented their lead and brought home the win, 63-59.

The margin between Albion Neptunes and Barking Dogs Show out even further, as Knights cemented their top spot on the ladder with a convincing 53-point victory, 76-23.

The association’s new- comers, The Farm ditches, added another win under their belt, leaving the weekend with a convincing 20-point deficit, 57-37.

The women’s 8-grades clash between Magpies and Phoenix was a high-light of the round, with Magpies taking a narrow two-point victory.

Premiers were built in the second half, with Magpies’ Jasmine Jones clinching with Phoenix’s Rachael Grieve and Magpies taking the 29-27 road.

Current ladder leaders Panthers had a 19-point lead over the Impulse Cycles Girls in their contest.

Panthers’ Ellis Scanziotti took 15 points for the game.

Raiders’ Narelle High- flies kept the pressure on Scorpion, but by the end of the second half, Scorpion went the victor, 54-32.

THE Great Southern’s first two games for the season at the Inter-College Equestrian Championships was a great start to the competition.

The new format for the Inter-College Equestrian Championships in this year’s competition allowed the riders to bring home the win, 63-59.

Healthy weekday lunch hacks

AUGIE'S CAFETERIA

Where you get cooking done outside the kitchen. It's the only way to ensure you're eating well after a 10-hour day. And with the warm weather we've been having recently, it's the perfect time to get some cooking done outside. There are many healthy and easy lunch recipes out there, but most other than not, they require more preparation or time and effort than you're willing to put in. Here are a few lunch hacks that will give you the healthiest lunch it's possible to be eating.

When your work doesn't allow for cooking, here are some tips to help you:

- Prepare your ingredients: The more ingredients you have on hand, the easier it is to make a healthy meal.
- Pack your lunch: Make sure you have all the ingredients you need for your meal.
- Use healthy fats: These can help you feel full for longer and make your meal more satisfying.

ANYTHING on toast

- Avocado, lemon, salsa, cheese, or even extra nuts or beans. All of these can be thrown on a loaf of bread in the lunchbox so you have it to go when you come back from work.
