Well, that’s it for another year and another Albany Agricultural Show. Hundreds of people flooded through the gates at Centennial Stadium last week to check out the displays, livestock, rides and watch the colourful Friday night fireworks. Pictured here are Levi, Thomas and Tyler Ravenhill, who seemed more than happy to relax with the cows in the shade on Friday afternoon. And it seemed the cows did not mind the company either.

Dr Brendan Carson told the Senior Medical Practitioner to temper their expectations.

He noted GPs were held responsible “to a significant degree” for foreseeable side effects and said some might be “entirely sure what those side effects will be.”

With some of the new cannabis products, we’re also not “entirely sure what those side effects will be.”

The announcement underpins the McGowan Government’s commitment to putting patients first (and following detailed analysis of those first year results of both 2016 and August this year).

That data, collated since the Federal Government first introduced legislative changes allowing the manufacture of medical cannabis products, showed there were 476 approvals to prescribe the drug in WA between November 2016 and August this year. Medicinal cannabis products are currently not approved for use by the Therapeutic Goods Administration or funded by the Pharmaceutical Benefits Scheme.

Medical cannabis is sometimes used by those suffering from conditions like multiple sclerosis, chronic pain and nausea and vomiting. It’s not “expect miracles,” he said.

This is a smart and humane resort for people who are suffering and in terrible pain,” he said.

Funds to eradicate ferals

A GROUP aiming to minimise the impacts of feral cats on Albany and surrounding areas in the Great Southern is growing after a Small Community Grants Scheme offer of $5000 was awarded to a new Animal Conservation Grant of $5000.

The Feral Cat Working Group aims to raise funds to establish a feral cat management plan for the City of Albany to be known as ‘Feral Care’.

The group has received strong support from local residents and businesses who are keen to see feral cat numbers reduced and their impact on native wildlife reduced.

We had a bloomin’ good time

The SunSmart 2019 Bloom Festival has come to an end and we hope you all enjoyed the vast array of events held across the region. Our festival finale was held a little earlier this year on Oct 17 at the Gnowangerup Museum and Keepin Place where everyone enjoyed a night of celebrating our local Noongar arts and culture. There was a display of art from locals in the Museum along with Noongar dancers, storytellers and a didgeridoo performance. The night was capped off with a beautiful feast prepared by locals and local businesses.

The Wild Paws Walk held in Katanning on Oct 19 was a huge success with 48 people in attendance along with 28 of their furry friends. The afternoon kicked off with a guided on-leash walk at O’Callaghan park where everyone enjoyed perusing our local wildlife gardens and orchids and hopefully learned a few things along the way. Following afternoon tea, there was talks on dog behaviour, doggy first aid and local Shire information from the ranger. A well-received event in the community and a huge thank you to all involved. It was a wonderful afternoon.

Thank you to all our competition participants and congratulations to our winners. Your prizes and vouchers are on the way. We have posted the photography competition winners’ pictures on our Great Southern Treasures Facebook page - so log on and have a look!

The Great Southern Treasures would like to thank all event holders, volunteers, community groups and local businesses as well as other supporters, sponsors and participants, visitors and participating shires for their input with special thanks to our partner, Healthway, promoting the SunSmart message. If you would like to be added to the event holder mailing list for next year, please email bloom@greatsoutherntreasures.com.au

The fun isn’t over yet though. The Great Southern Treasures and our sponsors will be supporting “Mulka – Place Names Katanning”, which has been postponed until Nov 30. This event will include a Welcome to Country and a large-scale puppet performance of Noongar storytelling, music and dance. This event is in collaboration with the Great Southern Treasures and has been produced by Community Arts Network in partnership with Moodjar Consultancy and the Katanning Noongar Leadership Group. Keep an eye on our Facebook page for updates.

It’s been a bloomin’ good year. Thank you for joining us and we look forward to seeing you and your friends next year. It promises to be even more bloomin’ exciting!

The SunSmart 2019 Bloom Festival is proudly supported by the State Government through Tourism WA’s Regional Events Scheme, The Great Southern Development Commission, Lotterywest, Healthway and the Road Safety Commission, with sponsorship from the Southern Ports, Regional Development Australia Great Southern and the media sponsors Great Southern Weekender, The Southernly Magazine, GWN7 and Triple M.

HUNDREDS of people went through the gates at Centennial Park this year to see what the Albany Agricultural Show had to offer. From dinosaurs to cows, to high-speed rides and fairy floss, there was something for everyone.

Denmarkian foodie Anna Gare, Albany Cake Decorators and Geoff Richardson from BG’s Kitchen worked up a storm, much to the audience and passersby’s noses delight.

The Albany Shantymen, Evan Ayres and The Swing Kings, and Retrosonics kept everyone on their feet and dancing the night away. They’ve been hard at work to keep grumbly tummies at bay.

And of course, the Friday night fireworks lit up the sky in a spectacular dazzle of colour with an impressive finale of pyrotechnics delighting the punters.

George and Theodore King with Jack Riggall.

Sofia Rinaldi and Kirsten Lebbing with Leo and Massimo Rinaldi.

Lily Gianatti kept the cows company.

Kaizen Beeck and Clay Michael whizzed around in their bumper car.

There were plenty of cows at the Show.

Vehicles face airbag registration ban

Nobody wants to see car owners inconvenienced by having their vehicles deregistered and critical airbags who have ignored repeated requests to have their vehicle airbags replaced.

Car owners can avoid the potential deregistration of these vehicles by having the faulty airbags, which could result in the death or serious injury of vehicle drivers and passengers, replaced as soon as possible.

Jaxon Whitbread

WELCOME back to our column. We thought a bit of a break was in order and we hope you enjoyed seeing your pets featured in the pages of our Roving Reporter.

Jaxon’s debut column this month was a massive hit with readers and we hope his adventures again today.

The 30-year-old reports to the Roving Reporter each month to share his exploits of when he meets dogs and their owners.

Jaxon loved meeting Billie on her holiday as she was so snuggly and kept giving him kisses.

Billie loves her food and blueberries. She doesn’t leave her home without her food so great that she knows how to play soccer.

The 26-year-old reports to the Weekender again today.

The 26-year-old reports to the Weekender again today.

Jaxon loved meeting Billie on her holiday as she was so snuggly and kept giving him kisses.

Billie loves her food and blueberries. She doesn’t leave her home without her food so great that she knows how to play soccer.

Billie, visiting from Melbourne, meets Jaxon.

Exclusive beachside location a drawcard

IN THE exclusive Barry Court is an absolute pearler of a stunning home ready for you to combine stylish living and a beachside lifestyle, and golfers will love being able to stroll across to the Albany Golf Links for their game.

The location is, of course, one of the drawcards for this home. In less than a five-minute walk, you will have wandered across the Emu Point to Ellen Cove walking path and crossed onto the white sands of Middleton Beach. This makes walking to the local cafes, playgrounds and shops a leisurely, scenic stroll or bike ride away.

Quality shines through the well designed home in both the build and the appliances. The layout is made for enjoying your time at home. The kitchen has a socialising layout so you can prepare food and still be involved in the conversations. There is plenty of bench space and loads of cupboards including a corner pantry. Cooking is a gas stovetop and a wall oven with a bosch dishwasher in place. The kitchen looks directly over the courtyard, which is a well-designed living space.

This area takes good advantage of the block size with paving and beautiful rose bushes running the length of the fence. There is plenty of room for an outdoor setting and barbecue under the shade sails and if you were inclined, there is ample room to put in some vegetable gardens as well.

At the entry a fashionable white and creamy interior design base will mean you won’t be calling for a painter anytime soon. It has been colour coordinated throughout the home with varying shades in the neutral colour palate utilised for all carpeting, tiles, paint, balustrades and window furnishings.

The roomy lounge at the entry and light bright dining area flow nicely into the kitchen where you can sit at the breakfast bar and enjoy the garden views.

Other areas on the lower level are the laundry, powder room and a direct access from the extra large double garage.

Heading upstairs will bring you to the bedrooms and the second living area, which has views over to the ocean from the balcony, where you can place a modest outdoor setting to enjoy a relaxing drink. This room has a reverse cycle air-conditioner, the third in the home.

The master bedroom is generously sized with plenty of space in the his and hers walk-in wardrobe and a large ensuite.

The other two bedrooms are double sized as well with built-ins. The second bathroom is also a very roomy one with a bath.

You are invited to the home open this Saturday at 1 pm or Rita McLean is happy to show you through this home at a time that suits you. Call her for an appointment of this exclusive home on 0427 423 200.

Summer school heats up

The Weekender, November 14, 2019

Ashleigh Fielding

THEATRE buff sin and radio producer, Ashleigh Fielding, has been running creative writing workshops planned for January next year. Albany Summer School and Albany Town Hall won’t be the theatre workshops and a book will be compiled with a creative writing course to start the year.

Parth-based script writer and theatre director, Alan Hancock will run the workshops and encourage people to come along and expect activities focused on acting, classical and modern theatre for the theatre workshops.

“Acting is a great way to get started in acting. It’s easy to get started and you can get some great storylines from famous actors from all over the world to get your head into it,” Hancock said.

Many people in their late 40s and 50s have already started the workshops and are enjoying the experience. Hancock is also offering an online course to students who can’t make it in person.

Ashleigh Fielding

The director for many years and knows how to get the best out of people and create a pleasurable environment. Hancock has also run workshops in theatre experience, and a theatre experience book to put some of these ideas into practice.

Torque is cheap

This week bumper car had only done a mere 35km since it was parked behind the wheel, immediately heading to the highway where I had been induced by being anabsolute snob. A few minutes later and she was up and over, handling and overall power, that I wouldn’t have expected in this car from a petrol engine.

The 2017 Ford Focus RS Limited Edition 2.3 Turbo 5-speed manual box comes in a standard factory colour of that colour is an absolute galva. This car steers power, it can go from 0-100km in under five seconds. I love it. The car even has a drift mode.

Let’s get that on the record hanging… This car was released in December 2017 but...
Horseworld has it all

ALBANY! Horseworld owner of more than a decade Chris Bennett knows how important it is to maintain a healthy and happy horse, which is why he and his team are passionate about providing the best possible care and wellbeing products available.

Contrary to its name, Albany Horseworld caters for more than just horses – the store contains a large range of stockfeed for horses, kangaroos, alpacas, pigs and sheep, as well as bulk dog food and bird seed.

There are a range of dietary supplements available, plus grooming gear, hand rearing supplies, and incubators, veterinarian supplies and fencing. Customers from as far as Esperance, Dongara, Portland, Perth, Toodyay and beyond have been coming to Albany Horseworld due to its wide range of products.

“People who care for their animals want to give them the best life possible,” Ms Bennett said.

“So there is a reason for them getting the best care here, we have the biggest range and we provide second advice.”

Albany Horseworld is located on Cheriton Pass Road and is open six days per week.

Punters race to season opener

The classic and widely anticipated first meeting of the 2019/2020 season is this Sunday for the much-anticipated opening at 261 Roberts Road this Sunday for the much-anticipated opening at 261 Roberts Road and is open six days per week.

The Club itself is a signature feature of Albany Wind Farm, the presentation of North Albany Wind Farm, and the surrounding natural bush.

The Park is currently being held and shows are on sale from the Albany Animal Welfare Op Shop on Cheriton Pass Road.

HUNDREDS of domesticated animals have been re-homed in just two years thanks to Albany Animal Welfare, and the volunteers who operate it, to continue the pattern for many years to come.

Rescue coordinator Reece Margoff said 200 cats and 120 dogs had been rescued by the organization since its inception in 2017 and many more animals had been re-homed.

“She said the pets’ objectives were to rescue abandoned and street animals from shelters, re-home unwanted pets, support animal welfare education, encourge and coordinate sterilisation programs and promote and encourage responsible pet ownership.”

“We work for the prevention of animal welfare issues and to make special welfare standards higher,” Ms Marqoffs said.

JIM Seymour began his building career in 1996 at the age of 33. He completed a mature-age apprenticeship in Carpentry and Joinery, during which time he gained extensive experience in building new homes, renovations and extensions. Having gained many valuable skills in all aspects of carpentry, Jim decided to specialise in what he enjoyed most and started his own business, Chatswood Carpentry. He has a particular focus on front door renovations, walk-in robes, shelving, stairs, patios and balustrades. Jim is also pretty handy with small home renovations including timber flooring, adding doors, windows and more, he has access to the best prices through local suppliers.

Chatswood Carpentry covers Albany and surrounding areas, as well as for small service and price contact Jim and Marlene on 0428 447 524.

Nature’s healing power

By AMBER CEEKIN

Beneath your personal trainer’s roof

Taking the time to get back to nature are now being demonstrated by science.

Some scientists in Finland realised how good nature makes us feel.

After all, we evolved in outdoor environments, over millions of years. Our indoor life has been extremely recent in the scheme of things.

So stop thinking that retail therapy or watching Netflix will make you feel good when you could partake in nature and realise how good nature makes us feel.

Nature’s healing power

Japanese researchers have found that even short walks in nature can reduce blood pressure, change heart rate variability and reduce stress.

The study also suggests consistently that people’s nervous systems can calm down when they are outside.

Human evolution could hold the answer as to why nature has such a positive effect on our brains.

According to research, people are spending, on average, an incredible 95 per cent of their time indoors.

Some scientists in Finland recommend at least five hours outside per month.
