Restoring oyster reefs

- Vested in the 1800s and now needed habitat. The State Government contributed to replicate what was once in Oyster Harbour to cover an area of more than 8ha. Oyster Harbour had been overharvested for the 1800s and now needed to be rehabilitated and protected.

"It was overfished during the early settlement period of Albany, around the 1830s to the late 1800s, as it was a really valuable food source", he said. "Because it was lost so long ago, we didn’t realise how important it was for the ecosystem and the benefits of it."

A big benefit we know from previous examples is that oyster reefs attract other species, because they provide a habitat for plants and animals and provide shelter for some fin and crustacean species.

He said the ultimate aim was to establish multiple large-scale reefs, and that Oyster Harbour maintains a sustainable population of Australian flat oyster and promotes conservation.

Rewards for young sober superheros

YOUNG drivers who refrain from drinking before leaving the road are being rewarded as part of a unique anti-drink driving campaign launched last Friday.

The Sober Super Heroes program will see some lucky drivers who blow 0.00 in random breath tests, as well as passengers who choose to travel with other drivers, rewarded with a range of products and services.

The campaign, which has been in existence for two years, is open to young drivers in the Great Southern between 2013 and 2017 who had no alcohol in their systems when they were involved in crashes that resulted in death or serious injury.

The students' contributions come several weeks after Albany South Coast Junior Peace Club donated a year's worth of tickets to the group to assist in cold climate operations.

Sgt Hartfield said the campaign was so successful because it encouraged a range of positive behaviours for drivers.

"We really want the young people to identify that there are direct benefits to going straight. So we want the young people to tell each other and their friends, ‘Let's all get sober, let's all drink in moderation,'" she said.

"And if you do have one too many, let's all get home safe."

The students who have contributed to the campaign were from Year 11 and 12 and have helped out during various occasions.

"The stuff they do is remarkable. They do it off their own back. They don't see how much they do but the headlines are doing it for them. It's actually really good for them because I know how much they do and I know how much they need the money," she said.

"Knowing you guys have gone out to make such a big difference is really big thing for me," she said.

"When anybody chooses to do something to raise money for a valued part of the community, that's a very special thing."

Accion said the students had won five of the six categories, starting the year with a win in the short story competition.

Rio donates vehicle

Rio Tinto’s Justin Francesconi, Gondwana Link’s Amanda Keesing and Keith Bradley with Noongar leader Eugene Eades and the donated vehicle.

The gift was arranged through Gondwana Link, owned by Greening Australia as part of the Nowanup group and Greening Australia from Gondwana Link, Friends of the Park and Greening Australia.

Noongar is also home to the Noongar Ranger Team that works on a number of land management tasks across the region. For many years the program has been self-funded, built largely through the dedication of the Noongar Rangers with valuable support from Noongar communities. It serves Jacqui Freeman, Manager for City Recovery, as a ‘living reminder of the cultural heritage of the land and the need to keep these landscapes healthy not just for the future but for the present”.

Noongar people and their language are an integral part of all Noongar communities. It is fantastic to have a valuable vehicle that we are very grateful to Rio for this donation,” he said.

We’re introduced to the Rio Red Dust Healing Program, which provides healing events for more than 2000 Aboriginal people from across the Great Southern region of Western Australia, with an initial focus on the Noongar people of the Great Southern region.

The program was started in 2005 by Tom Man, who became convinced he needed to change his way of life, or risk losing everything.

“I want to share the Red Dust Healing program with Albany and the wider community,” he said.

The program is aimed at young boys and young girls from the local area.

TWO PIONEERS, one author of the Red Dust Healing Program, a young boy and young girl, hop off the back of a four-wheel drive to come up the road to a big red chalk board as they each say.” And I always remember how happy the sight of that dust made me.”

It’s the reason Tom called his program Red Dust Healing.

“This means tens of thousands of kilometres such events and activities travel. It is fantastic to have a valuable vehicle and should translate into more people and communities being able to manage it better into the future,” she said.

“The feedback shows the Park was highly valued and well used,” said Mr Cains.

Tester victorious on historic night

HISTORY was made at the Albany Speedway Club on Saturday night when Jacinta Tester was awarded one of two winners of the Noel Pearson Memorial, the first female to ever win it.

She defeated the Portland 175 division, while Jamie Langdon swept all his four races in the fastest Sprintcar division to also be awarded the winning trophy.

It was a perfect night for racing and there was a big crowd in attendance.

And the night didn’t disappoint, as there was a number of clashes and crashes keeping punters enthralled.

CRUISING 2019-20

Albany will host a total of 11 cruise ship visits from this October to March next year, including MS Queen Elizabeth on 8th December 2019. The ships will bring more than 12,000 visitors to Albany during the season.

Everything you need to know about Southern Ports—Albany’s up-coming cruise ship season

Q: What does Southern Ports do for cruise ships?
A: Southern Ports guarantees a berth for ships visiting Albany, and port charges are significantly discounted. Southern Ports also provides an indigenous cultural welcome experience and a free shuttle to the Albany central business district.

Q: How do I get involved in supporting cruise ships in Albany?
A: Join the Albany community to welcome cruise ship passengers as they stroll down York Street! The Albany Visitor Centre information van will be in the Town Square on cruise ship days to provide resources to visitors and the community. Markets may be held in the Town Square on York Street. Find out more from the Albany Visitor Centre on 9841 9290.

Q: Where can I meet someone arriving on a cruise ship?
A: Southern Ports provides a free shuttle bus service for cruise ship passengers which stops in the centre of town. We recommend you arrange to meet passengers in town as roads at the port are used by many heavy vehicles. If there are special circumstances which prevent passengers from being able to catch the shuttle bus, please contact Southern Ports—Albany on 9892 9000 to discuss alternative arrangements at least 48 hours prior to the ship’s arrival.

Q: Where can I view cruise ships from?
A: Arrival and departure of cruise ships can be viewed from Marine Drive or the boardwalk. There is no parking along Princess Royal Drive.

Q: Can I go on board a cruise ship?
A: Due to Federal Government security requirements, the public is not allowed on cruise ships or in the security zone of the port. A local security company assist Southern Ports to meet these requirements. There is no public access to the port and no parking near entry gates. A public carpark is adjacent to the public boat ramp.

Vessel movement security notice

A restricted area of 80m off the Port’s berth is permanently in place. In order to meet Federal Government security requirements, an additional Exclusion Zone is in place at berths 1 and 2 whenever a cruise ship is alongside. All other vessels and watercraft will be prohibited from entering this zone, which extends 200m from the berth face. Penalties apply.

Q: Why would a cruise ship anchor in King George Sound, rather than coming in to berth?
A: Cruise ships are high-sided above the waterline, which means they can sit about 4km high. They are also short-sided below the waterline, usually to a depth of 7m. This means they can be difficult to manoeuvre in strong winds, so the Captain or Harbour Master is tasked with determining whether it is safe for a vessel to enter port. In high winds, it may be safer for vessels to anchor at King George Sound and use its tenders to ferry passengers to and from Albany.

Q: Want to find out more?
A: Southern Ports current cruise ship schedule for Albany is available at www.southernports.com.au. For other queries, email enquiries.albany@southernports.com.au or call 9892 9000.
Conserving cockatoos

David Kavanagh

KOJONUP residents have been asked to spot types of cockatoos over the next year as part of a new two-year conservation effort.

The Shire of Kojonup, South West Catchments Council and Birdlife Australia have joined forces in the aim of preventing the decline of Carnaby’s Black Cockatoos in the region.

Natural Resource Management Officer Jane Kowald called on local residents to have the birds, particularly during their breeding season between July and February.

“These can be current sightings but we are also keen to hear where the birds are the year-round or ‘hitching’,” she said.

“This information can assist us in determining what might have changed in those areas so that we are able to take appropriate action.”

Data collected as part of Birdlife’s Great Cockatoo Count suggests the population of Carnaby’s Cockatoos in the Great Southern has declined by around 40 per cent since 2011.

This reflects similar declines across the range of the endangered species.

“In order to successfully breed, Carnaby’s Cockatoos need access to open areas with ample food and water within a six to eight kilometer distance,” Ms Kowald said.

“By identifying where Carnaby’s Cockatoos are nesting or have previously nested, we are able to determine whether the suitability of sites can be improved through repairing or natural hollows, or providing artificial ones, planting additional food sources or creating water points.”

There are 33 nesting sites across the Shire where the birds are found, although some of these are based on decade-old records.

To report a sighting, contact Mr Kowald at kowaldj@sho.kojonup.wa.gov.au

$5m playground renovation

The refurbished Kojonup All Ages Playground opened on November 15.

Work on the $5m renovation of the playground began in December last year and came to an end with a soft opening for the community on November 15. The playground has been used consistently since then, with a particular spike in activity during after school hours.

Shire of Katanning President Liz Quigley said the result of the development was fantastic.

“Thank you to all of the people who have been involved, including local community representatives who have been working closely with Council on this amazing project,” she said.

The refurbished site features giant slides, an aerial walkway, a children’s play area and other additions.

The refurbishment was funded by the State Government.

Connecting to the community

FOR YOUNG people like Ethan Hall, volunteering can be as much about making important male connections as it is about helping out. The 17-year-old commenced a Certificate II in Leadership course through Worktrain WAA earlier this year and has been catching his time to a community service project. This includes work funded by the City of Albany to renovate an old shed at the Rainbow Coastal Garden in Lockyer. "When we help around the garden we get a chance to interact with people we usually wouldn’t interact with, people from different demographics," Ethan said.

"I really help you get involved in the community. I was able to get to Albany from Narrogin and really got a job. Currently more than a dozen volunteers attend the garden for a few hours every Wednesday morning to help make the site more accessible. The renovations include the removal of existing hazard and the inclusion of wheelchair access. Ethan said his role also enabled him and his peers to go on frequent expeditions to Albany to network with other industry and elsewhere in the Great Southern.

"We actually met up [laugh] Tracy Sleeman recently and we’ve been to a lot of small businesses like mechanics," he said. "They explain to us stuff about their work you never would have known before.

"We actually met with [councillor] Tracy Sleeman (centre). Fellow volunteer Sheryl Shawyer, who has helped coordinate the relief effort over the past three months, said donating her time was more than worthwhile.

"It does you good, it really does you good to help out," she said.

Albany’s dedicated volunteers will be rewarded for their ongoing efforts this month with a series of events for Thank a Volunteer Day. Volunteers are invited to join a free morning tea event at the Rainbow Coastal Community Garden on Humpty Swamp Street in Lockyer on Wednesday, December 5. The event will give participants a chance to learn about all things green from the garden’s resident gurus and staff. Participants will also be able to enjoy a quick morning tea. Guests are encouraged to bring their own chairs.

Volunteers are also urged to join in a big day out to the Recollections of War Museum scheduled for the following day, Thursday, December 5. Located between Albany and Denmark, the establishment houses four purpose-built showcases containing a varied collection of militarymemorable and historical artefacts from the Boer War onwards. It is run by couple John and Kathryn Shapland, who will also be coordinating a barbecue lunch at the property for the event. The excursion will run from 9:30am to 1pm.

"This is an opportunity to really get out and enjoy the great outdoors," said Mel. "It’s a community, for those there we areeldonally and well as economically.

By Saturday evening, there was a barbecue luncheon at their St John’s Anglican Church next to St John’s Anglican Church, a group of more than 15 volunteers, including Ethan, were a lot of homeless people that could do with a good meal and it is just got from there.

"It’s the community, for those there we areeldenally and well as economically.

CARAVANNING and camping holidays are a great way to enjoy the great outdoors, and that includes your pet. You might be surprised to learn how many carpets and holiday parks in Australia will allow your pet. But they are rare, and it is generally easy to avoid them. It is a good idea to know before you leave to ensure that your pet does not have a stressful holiday. The most popular pet-friendly holiday parks are in Australia and can be found through any special consideration.

The following are tips for the Caravan Industry Association of Australia for travel with your pet. Before you leave, ensure:
- Your pet is fully vaccinated and treated for external and internal parasites.
- Your pet’s name and address are clearly marked on a name tag attached to their collar.
- You have appropriate equipment to transport your pet.
- You have a first-aid kit and a pet carrier with you.
- You have your pet’s medical records with you.
- You have enough water for your pet’s journey.
- You are looking for somewhere to go on your next family holiday, including the entire trip.
- You have a complete list of contact details for your pet’s family.

The Great Southern Caravans and Camping Show is the ultimate guide to meeting with your pet for a fun holiday. In addition to bringing an affordable and enjoyable holiday option, camping trips have many features of positive benefits for families.

Camping bonds the family

With the end of the school year in sight and the beginning of the holiday season just around the corner, now is the perfect time to finish your plans for the upcoming summer break. One of the best options for a family holiday is a caravan or camping trip. Taking a camping trip is a great way to learn how to travel and enjoy the great outdoors. It is also an excellent way for families to learn about each other and their different ways of doing things. It is also an excellent way for families to learn about each other and their different ways of doing things.

One of the most common ways to travel is by car. The TUG V3 is the perfect solution for those who want to travel in style. It is manufactured in Gnangara, Western Australia, and is field-tested and constantly gets a lot of feedback from all sides of the business. It is designed to reduce the risk of bodily injury, such as strains and muscle damage, by removing the need for the driver to be physically present in the moving caravan trailer. It is a very easy to ride yourself simply by using the handle. Cinema comes to life

ASHLEIGH FIELDING

An ALBURY media company has designed and filmed an audiovisual story for cinematic backing to a theatre performance to tour the state.

A Fortune Life is a theatre show that will be performed live at cinemas in regional and rural towns across the state, including Wagga Wagga and Gilgandra.

A film aspect of the show will stay on the cinema screen behind the actors.

With no dialogue, host and company member Stuart Halusz has designed the project with creative director Josephine Hayes said the innovative format will make both a highlight and a challenge.

“Our involvement with the production is a test in the development of our company’s narrative,” she said.

Final performance for kings of swing

ASHLEIGH FIELDING

THE screen will fall on beloved Albany rock-and-roll and blues band The Swing Kings for the final time this weekend at a special farewell performance at Albany’s Antipodean, with tickets soon to go on sale.

The band has decided to call it a day and not continue with band commitments after leaving Antipodean from Albany and each other.

But frontman Evan Ayres will keep the spirit of the band alive when he embarks on a WAAPA and University of Western Australia Bachelor of Arts program later this month.

Final performance for kings of swing

ASHLEIGH FIELDING

This weekend will see the beloved Albany rock-and-roll and blues band The Swing Kings play their final gig Saturday, January 18 at the Antipodean.

“Originally it was Evan, Oliver and Byron,” Ayres said.

“We were in the same year 5 music class and we kicked rock and roll there was a bit of John Paul Young in there.”

Tony Rechichi and his charter/guiding business for some sort of fishing regatta opened around 60cm that would be a challenge on my 4lb brown gear. The places were scarce and we could expect some good flat fish fishing as the water had been getting some good rain and the lagoon freshened up. The fish were idyllically suited for urban or outdoor adventures. Finally, it comes with a new 7-inch touch-screen media system and it is available with a reversing camera and a parking sensor, which is ideal for urban or outdoor adventures. But with the Rangers I have been drilling lately, clearly the best feature is the bottom line. The life model starts from $50,490 drive-away while the Ranger Wildtrak comes in at $73,990.

All models come complete with a five-year warranty, road assist and capped price servicing. Call now for a test drive at Albany City Renault on 92-98 Earl Street or phone 9842 5789. FREE Fitting & Balancing.

Evers: new court needed

A GROUP of local and international artists and environmentalists are calling for the creation of a new Environment Court that is independent and will act “according to the public interest” and include a specific provision for third-party appeal rights in its decision making.

Danial Evers said the change would stop “environmental approvals being made to the local community and considered by the person in charge of making final decisions about these approvals,” she pointed Chief Judge’s direction.

“Current reforms of the Environmental Protection Act 1986 (WA) and the Environmental Protection Act 1989 and have three offices based in Mt Barker, the first of which is the Wangara Conservation Centre.

Southern Haulage Ind. is a family owned and run business operating in the Great Southern region of rural Western Australia. We have a diverse range of services from bulk and timber haulage, float and flattop haulage and liquid fertilisers as well as harvesting and civil roadworks crews.

We are also proud sponsors of this incredible event that is coming to Mount Barker and are looking forward to welcoming the Walldogs to our community.

They will give people a bit of personal pride in the town,” he said.

Panthers ruthless in crushing Blues

IAN BEECK

PANTHERS smashed Crystal Blues by 40 points on Tuesday night in the Albany Basketball Association’s Women’s A-Grade competition, joining Kingdom Storm at the top of the ladder.

Despite the narrow score, the game was played at a physically-chaotic pace with many fouls and a physical scramble for the ball. Unusually, both teams had over 20 possessions in each period.

Captain Mitch Green was dominant on the boards with 31/7 off seven overs. Green then exploded the scoreboard with 76 off only 19 overs, with 13 fours and 2 sixes. Green’s better half was a Masterclass by none other than Park bowler Matt Wood (10 cheaply bowled) and 49 and the match was over before the next ball had to be bowled.

Jack Stenf then took to the crease, scoring 81 with Vally hitting the team edge closer to victory with a master knock of 34. Mellor was then the hero, finishing 19 out of 61 and maximising Park’s starting with 2/16.

Second-placed Manypeaks took on Collingwood Park and achieved an old-fashioned batting win by 186 runs. Captain Crusaders Aaron Attfield returned 1/22 from his 10 overs in a good all-round effort, scoring 32 off just 15 overs and finishing with the impressive 132-3.

The Railways bowlers put the pressure on all but led by Ryan Tinker, who bowled two wickets with one ball, then took 1/42 off his 10 overs.

In the final game of the round, Denmark took on Manypeaks with the result in doubt until the last ball. But this brought out the in-form Nataki Dregani and Nathan Davis, both coming in the 24th over, both scoring 40. Denmark then won by five wickets.

A number of former players but neither their highest score was from Ben Atfield with 25.

Dealing with setbacks: How to stay fit while injured or sick

By AMBER CEREREVAC

Injury, illness, and life all happen, and there’s no room for negative self-talk in exercise. It can be surprisingly challenging to take a break, especially if you’re used to pushing yourself to the limits. However, sometimes the best way to keep the flow going is by letting go in a big way.

Busy yourself with something new and exciting. It will help to rush anything, and in the end, the exercise is a great way to manage life’s events. For example, if you’re feeling down about something that felt easy a few months ago, why not try doing something completely different?

Example: For the next six weeks, try a new exercise, such as yoga or Pilates. This will help you to maintain your fitness levels and keep your mind focused.

Here are a few tips for helping you to stay fit while injured or sick:

1. Find a new way to exercise. It could be as simple as taking a walk around the block or doing some stretches.
2. Set realistic goals. Don’t expect to reach your pre-injury fitness levels right away.
3. Stay positive. Even if you’re not feeling well, try to focus on the positive aspects of your recovery.

By staying active and making healthy choices, you can help to speed up your recovery and get back to your normal life.

There’s no need to over-exert yourself, but make sure to do something that you enjoy and that you can do consistently. Here are a few ideas:

• Roofing, Gutters & Downpipes • Gas Installation & Servicing
• 2.2 & 7.6 Tonne Excavator & Bobcat Hire

Excuses are not an option. You are either working on your fitness or you are working on your health. It’s crucial to do both, and that means you need to find a way to make exercise a part of your routine.

There’s no need to sacrifice your health for your fitness. It’s important to find a balance between the two, and to make sure that you’re doing both.
