DENMARK postal worker David Wilson reached a career milestone going into the new year. Mr Wilson celebrated 50 years working for Australia Post — a career that saw him work and live in eight different towns and cities.

The 65-year-old caught up with the Weekender this week as he commenced 12 months of long service leave ahead of retirement. Mr Wilson’s first experience with the postal service was when he was just 14 — he performed relief postman work in his hometown of Yarloop during the school holidays.

“There was no break for me,” Mr Wilson laughed. “The school term ended and I went straight to work.”

He scored himself a permanent job working in Bridgetown a few months later and as he got older, was chosen to work the night telephone duty. This made Mr Wilson responsible for the telephone exchange between 10pm and 7am.

“The school term ended and I went straight to work.”

Over the course of time, he worked in Pemberton, again in Yarloop, Waroona, Perth, Mandurah and Bunbury.

Mr Wilson signed off as a postman in 1978 and began working inside the post office behind the counter.

He moved to Denmark 10 years later with his family to work at the town’s post office and never looked back.

“They’re a good mob to work for, they look after you,” Mr Wilson said of Australia Post. “It’s also a great way to get to know people.”

Australia Post State General Manager for WA Donna Vecchio congratulated Mr Wilson on his achievement.

“It is with great pride that we acknowledge and sincerely thank David for his 50 years of service with Australia Post,” she said.

“David has worked in many communities across the South West of Western Australia over the years and has been a part of the fabric of Denmark Post Office since 1988.

“We whole-heartedly congratulate David on this remarkable milestone.”

Now that Mr Wilson has called it a day on his working life, he is looking forward to the many adventures retirement can hold.

“I’d like to do the lap of Australia,” he said.

“And I’m heading to Japan in September with my seven brothers and their wives, and I’m taking my daughter, so that should be interesting.”

Bowls in the summertime and more fishing are also on the cards for Mr Wilson’s golden years.

David Wilson has just completed his 50th year working for Australia Post.

Water horoscope

- ARIES
  - Are you energised and thrilled about where you can go and what you can do? In passionate matters, a couple of Aries will be feeling their oats and are likely to get quite excited about a new relationship or an existing one. Expect some extra responsibilities to be thrown your way over the next week. And Pisces too may be up to some good work, except one or two enterprising Aries may fall in love and find themselves in need of a new relationship. Beware of taking a risk of any form. And be sure to keep a close watch on your finances this week.

- TAURUS
  - This is the one where there is just the same balance between a sign that's all about change. Turmoil of Gemini and Taurus, the process of adaptation to a new environment, is the key to success. Gemini is the sign of the zodiac that can make sure of your success. It is the sign of the zodiac that is known for its adaptability and innovation. The best solution is to adapt to the new environment and to take the lead in making changes. The key to success is to adapt to the new environment and to take the lead in making changes.

Stampede comes to a grinding halt

The Kalgoorlie Stampede was one of two events to be cancelled this year due to the ongoing COVID-19 pandemic.

McEugene Brown, who has been involved with the Kalgoorlie Stampede for over a decade, expressed his disappointment at the cancellation of the event.

"It's a blow to see the stampede cancelled," he said. "We've been looking forward to it for months and it's a real disappointment for all involved."
Loan enables bus trial

The Denmark Community Transport Group has received the support required to enable them to commence trials of a bus service running between both Denmark and Albany.

The service will run under the auspices of local musical group, the Denmark Community Choir, who, over the past year, have made available their 14-seat vehicle for the trial.

Transport group spokesman Chris Lendrum said he hoped that members of the Denmark and Albany community will make use of the service running between the towns.

“The bus service is an excellent opportunity for the residents of both Denmark and Albany to utilise the service to meet each other, and allow easy travel between the two towns at a fraction of the cost,” he said.

Lendrum said the service could also be used by ferry-goers between Denmark and Albany to travel to the regional city to visit medical centres and the like along with two ferry terminals.

“My hope is that people will use the service to take advantage of the ferry service,” he said.

Mr Lendrum said initially there will be a morning and after-noon service running between Denmark and Albany four days a week.

“During the period between the two daily services, the vehicle will be parked in Denmark and the group will look at offering services about the state of Denmark reflective of the history of Denmark to all passengers on the service,” he said.

“We acknowledge the bus service will be displayed at most public venues, clubs, medical centres and the like along with the contact phone numbers to be used.”

“During the family workshop, parents and guardians are expected to dance with their children. Parents are encouraged to bring their own child,” said Ms Blair.

“We also hope to see the participants for the 2019 SunSmart Country Carnival,” added Ms Blair.

“Tickets are available at the Denmark Community Transport Group office, or online at rsc.wa.gov.au or emailing palenqueb@gmail.com.”

Lifeguards for Denmark

Lifeguards for Denmark

The Shire of Denmark has employed three new life-guards to assist beachgoers who face the waves over the summer.

Resident Dougall MacMaster, Laura McEwan and Doughal MacMaster will patrol Ocean Beach until February 1, from 9am to 5pm weekdays and from 9am to 1pm Saturdays.

The positions were supported by the Denmark Surf Life-Saving Club (DSLSC) who provided the proficiency testing during the recruitment process and will provide access to essential lifesaving equipment throughout their tenure.

MacMaster and McEwan have developed knowledge of Ocean Beach and community and have demonstrated a desire to contribute to the Denmark community.

Last year the DSLSC celebrated 40 years of patrolling the waves of Denmark and have demonstrated a desire to contribute to the Denmark community.

Edward floats his boat

KERRY Atkins (Managing director 12 December) is right - observing nature shows that we shouldn’t be heading for another global fashion.

But we humans have intervened and added a whole new dimension. CO2 Harkness that reigns Earth’s weather is the result of 1.5°C of warming since the past 30 years.

Kerry suggests we follow the money - let’s see the stock of a few hundred finance solutions any trick for the millions. The millions who can gloss by delaying emergency redoubt by a decade or two.

Every year of delay is critical for the health of the planet and the survival of countless species. Every year of doubt stands the survival of doubt padded in letters to the editor makes it much harder for government to address, the wounds such as school of the climate. Father and Dividend is one of the Climate Chilli finalist. One of the Climate Chilli winners is Richard Holden at UNSW. These policies would rapidly reduce our emissions, save many lives and smooth our path towards a zero-carbon economy, while protecting the 70 per cent that can’t be written out of an argument.

We really think this is a major wake-up call for governments and climate change managers.

Let’s hope that through a prompt and industrious enquiring this shocking can be revealed.

In the immediate future, we need to do any projects on the island and funds, on the summer period, being on the usual summarising this.

Promoting the perks of permaculture

VANCOUVER Arts Centre echoed with the quirky tunes of Formidable Vegetable Sound System’s performance on Sunday night.

The Fremantle-based group had an impressive output set earlier in the day, which had left some of the audience members and kept their feet dancing.

Prior to their performance at the Denmark Arboretum and in Albany, Pemberton-born and raised farmer Charlie Mgee said the group was on a mission to “see the good in change” through their music.

“We recently committed to stop flying overseas and petrol in our van,” he said.

“We instead chose to stay on home turf and tour in our own vegetable oil powered tiny house truck to promote the perks of permaculture. “Songs with purpose not only give us a more plannable way to remember things, but also take a trip further into our own local and personal cultures,”

The band has played at major festivals including Glastonbury and have played alongside world-class acts such as Radiohead and The Rolling Stones.

Mgee believes that by having our dynamic live shows based around permaculture and other ecological principles, the group can change the way we look at the way we live our lives.

“Simple solutions provide a stage for us to communicate the benefits of our local and resident and permanent cultures,”

The lawns at Vancouver Arts Centre became a dancefloor.

Singer-songwriter Saritah provided the supporting performance, later in the evening with her own blend of reggae, roots and acoustic soul.

Charlie Mgee said the group was on a mission to “sow seeds of change” through their music.

Marron season open

Grace Jones

Fisheries will be able to expand what they search for in the future after the annual marron season kicked off yesterday.

Department of Primary Industries and Regional Development (DPIRD) Southern Region Compliance Manager Rachel Adams said the marron season opened across the state from January 5 to February 15.

The limited marron fishing season and management rules, such as permitted fishing gear, bag, size and season limits, hold the promise of better-quality marron for recreational fishers in the future.

The program’s objective is to ensure the unique experience of catching marron in the wild can continue now and into the future.

“Careful management of the marron fishery is crucial not just because of fishing pressure, but also changes in the physical environment including, climate change and reduced rainfall and flow into our rivers,” she said.

Wignalls ticket winners are all smiles

The Wignalls January 2 – Wignalls Family ticket had a total prize of $3000 worth of competitive prizes.

We had a huge response to the bumper prize giving day that had three draws on offer to the guests at the Wignalls Beach and Jazz Festival which is in tomorrow.

It will be the last time performed as a group Rob and Clare Wignall decided the moves on the next year that after 26 years, this iconic event would be their swansong.

The concert is headlined by the Wignalls Family Band supported by local performers Adi Guinovart and The Victors.

Tickets are $50 each via wignallsbeachclean.upcomingevents.com in advance.

For young readers, there is a colouring competition that has an amazing prize pack up for grabs on the day.

Richard Hall, Leanne Diaz and Lydia Arnold were the winning entries and each won a colouring in set at Wignalls weekend night.

Ice Fishing Weekend at Albany

Ice Fishing Water Safety Notice

Ice fishing can have its risks. People are encouraged to start planning their activities and be aware of the risks surrounding ice fishing.

Ice safety education

The City of Albany has awarded a tender for the detailed surf reef detailed design and construction of surf reefs.

The initiative is part of the City of Albany Middleton Beach Week presented by Lagoon this January.

The festival runs from 20th-26th January with activities for all ages, as the City of Albany partners with community groups and local business to activate the coast together.

American drivers set to invade Attwell Park

USA drivers Jeff Roth (inside) and Joe Godsey will compete in the USA Invasion Late Model Tour.

The next two Americans on the list is a two-car team with Jeff Roth and Joe Godsey behind the alphabet. This team will compete Down Under for the first time and will be looking to improve on last year’s results.

Heading the list of American drivers is 17-year-old Muskogee, Oklahoma native Hayden Ross. He is seventh in the points standings where they finished third time and will be looking to compete Down Under for the Australian Title and Perth Motorplex in conjunction with the Australian Title and the Australian Title.

Pearler of a concert

ASHLEIGH FELDMAN

MUSICAL and academic Karl Neuenfeldt will share songs and stories from Australia’s pearling history at a special evening performance next Thursday.

Perfect Pearls will commence at 5.30pm on January 16 and cost $10 to attend.

Neuenfeldt will perform and play recordings from his curated album of pearling songs, which is a celebration of the people, belonging, love and loss associated with the pearling industry.

“As part of a production team, we did over 30 albums of recordings in Torres Strait and WA although the industry itself is now focused on pearl-farming. “

Neuenfeldt said he has also worked with Henry ‘Seamen’ Dan, one of the last singing pearl divers, who was recorded in Broome, Darwin and Thursday Island, for the past 20 years.

“He said Dan educated him on what life and work was like in the industry and what the music was used for.

“The songs are personal memories but also communal memories documenting important stories of migration, multiculturalism and community. This is music that has been passed down from generation to generation. “

The musicians and stories from Australia’s pearling history at a special exhibition and evening performance next Thursday.

“The perfect Pearls exhibit features a collection of recorded performances by the Pigram Brothers, Ted Egan and Seaman Dan, as well as historical photographs of artefacts of the industry. “

For those who cannot attend the event, they will be able to enjoy the Perfect Pearls exhibition at the Albany Regional Museum in Broome, Darwin and Thursday Island.

Neuenfeldt said he has also interviewed Dan, as well as historical artefacts of the industry. “

The Perfect Pearls exhibition will be on display until February 9.

Peach Melba

Method

1) Place sugar, water and vanilla in pot, bring to boil, add peaches and simmer for five minutes or until soft.

2) Let cool in liquid, seal aside.

3) Praline

1) Bring wet ingredients to simmer and cook till golden, brushing down sides with a wet pastry brush.

2) Once golden tip it on to greaseproof paper and sprinkle nuts over and let set.

4) Raspberry coulis

1) Bring ingredients to simmer and cook for three minutes

2) Puree in blender, set aside to cool.

To assemble: spread coulis on plate, add peach (skin off), ice-cream and finish with shards of nutty praline.

Sprint in for this Mercedes

This 2009 Mercedes Sprinter could be considered in a multitude of ways from a delivery van to a mobile restaurant.

If you choose the former, you can stand tall in the back whilst giving a name in and out of the rain.

The same if you decide to fit it out for a TV-style vehicle in a manner completely determined by you.

This Sprinter was a former ambulance, and so the point here is, the name is determined by you.

The point is, you can use it to transport items in and out of the van.

Campervan. From a delivery van to a fitted out campervan.

It has extremely low kilometres at only 97,000 and this model is priced at 99,991.

One phone call to 9841 1231 or Dave McLean on 0418 936 326 is all it takes.

No matter where you are, make sure everyone has a personal flotation device on.

The seatbelts of the sea

FOR my first article written this year I would like to talk about something very important to everyone – marine safety. The current laws state that you must wear and comply with a PFD in a marine environment. The enforcers of this law, when they feel something is wrong, will pull you over and put you in trouble for not having a PFD on.

Let’s talk about the easy one in the big picture of things and that is boat safety. The current laws state the wearing of personal flotation devices (PFD). The question here is whether you think it is hard enough for them to wear personal flotation devices or are they sometimes not worn for no reason at all?

I believe this is an easy law to enforce because it was brought in many years ago. It is not hard to get a fine for not wearing a PFD while boating or rock fishing.

Another question is, do we need another law making it an offence to not wear some form of PFD while on a vessel? While I think we are a naming state with enough rules, I think making it illegal not to wear some sort of PFD would go a long way in preventing accidents on the water.

A special challenge and one which makes getting policing this a fairly practical thing.

Now I know rock fishing does not apply to everybody but surely there is enough people in our area Australia we want each to wear a PFD while rock fishing.

I can see it in my mind, a picture of a seatbelt while rock fishing. Legal to wear a PFD while rock fishing and many will fit a PFD while rock fishing.

I will make this a must law that you must wear a PFD while rock fishing and that may 150 per cent reduce the number of injuries when things go wrong.

For your own safety the current laws state that you must wear and comply with a PFD in a marine environment.

I believe the best way forward is the education program is the best way forward.

For your own safety the current laws state that you must wear and comply with a PFD in a marine environment.

I believe the best way forward is the education program is the best way forward.

Finally, let us do all that we can to make sure we all go back to the boat and are safe.

Greener pastures for swim winner

By AMBER CERKECEVAC
Owner/Editor/Chief Editor

It’s been another big week for the Albany Surf Life Saving Club, with the ASP Quad Series coming to town and the annual Greener pastures Swim leniency. Setting goals is a fabulous idea, but it’s important to have a clear understanding of what you’re setting your sights on. It’s easy to get sidetracked by short-term goals, but focusing on long-term objectives can help you stay motivated and on track. So take some time to reflect on your fitness goals and make sure they align with your overall health and well-being. It’s also important to have a support system in place, whether that’s friends, family, or even a fitness coach. Having someone to share your progress with can be incredibly motivating. Finally, remember to enjoy the journey. Training can be challenging, but the sense of accomplishment you’ll feel when you reach your goals will be worth it. So go out there and swim for the future!

ABALONE GIP STEPHEN LEE AT THE HEAD.

The week before that, 26 people braved the waves at the 10th annual Greener pastures Swim. The swim is a 750-meter open water race that takes place in the Swan River, adjacent to the Swan Bicentennial Park. It’s a challenging but rewarding race that attracts swimmers of all ages and abilities. The swimmers were greeted with perfect conditions for swimming, with calm waters and a gentle breeze. The event was well-organized, with a strong support team on hand to ensure the safety and enjoyment of all participants. The Albany Surf Life Saving Club would like to thank everyone who took part in the swim, as well as the volunteers who helped make it a success.
