RENTING hardship worsens

According to the Real Estate Institute of Western Australia, vacancy rates in Albany have rocketed to the highest on record.

Residential vacancy rates dropped to 0.5 per cent in September, which is a long way off the 4.4 per cent recorded at the height of the pandemic in March.

Ray White Albany General Manager Darren Leslie said there was a general lack of housing across the board.

“We’ve got a pressure cooker at the moment, where there’s an outpouring of people wanting to sell or rent,” he said.

“A lot of owners have reversed their rentals to the sales market because it’s the first encouraging sign we’ve had for sales in the past 10 years,” he said.

But this was the case for just over 12 years and this is the hardest I’ve seen it in the past three months. The general mood of the buyers has changed. It’s very much a seller’s market again...”

The biggest challenge for the market is the general lack of housing across the board.

Denmark’s climate rally heats up

CHARLOTTE WOOLDRIDGE

MORE than 130 Denmark locals took to the Place Street Precinct last week to demonstrate their support for the WA Climate Action Act presented by Greens MP Tim Clifford.

The Extinction Rebellion Rally for Our Climate gathered on Wednesday afternoon to raise awareness and encourage people to join the movement to resist climate change.

Extinction Rebellion member and rally organiser Nita Marsh was thrilled at the turnout.

A lack of action from governments is not acceptable, she said.

“We are calling for a collective movement, a mass movement, to take political action to stop climate change. To demand to be heard. It’s now or never,” she said.

The rally included multiple live performances from members of Extinction Rebellion.

The crowd watched multiple live performances from members of Extinction Rebellion.

“Nita is very proud of the turnout,” said Alanna’s Climate Reality Project member Gerard Siero, who attended the rally.

Extinction Rebellion member and rally organiser Julie Marsh was thrilled at the turnout.

“The more of us there are, the more power we will have to demand change,” she said.

“I hope this rally will inspire others to take action and demand political change.”

ONGERUP Primary students traded school books for surf lessons this week as part of an extended environmental learning program. Principal Mark Bruce believes it’s the first time the school has ever offered a surf camp to students and said the kids were thrilled to learn new skills.

The surf education week opened at Middleton Beach and nearby beaches aimed to teach students about beach and surf safety, ecology and sustainability, right through National Science Week’s ‘deep blue’ theme.

It can be tough at times and we need the courage to take a risk and talk to someone about what we are feeling. Everyone feels vulnerable, and people you can trust. You may be asking the question, do not feel burdened. Because you care.

Just last week, the cast were holding the last dress rehearsal under the lights of the Plantagenet District Hall along with the narration that the play they had been practicing for the past 3 months, for the 11pm matinee performance on Saturday 14th of November.

The students of Room 2.3 wanted to tackle the Broadway version of crowd favourite Matilda. However, the school administrators were concerned that the school performances could be affected by COVID-19 restrictions and were unsure how to proceed.

But the students were determined to perform as an ‘in their own version of Matilda’

“They are our kids, it’s all about our kids. We are their parents and we are so proud of them, they are amazing,” Music teacher Rhiana Rowland said about the kids and the show.

Mick Woodley, dreadsed for fishing in a styke the author should have been, holding a typical Rowley's trout.

I'm a stickler for detail, so I had to get the facts right. Not long after we started listing even after several downsides from the deck watch, then not long after I landed my first fish. I was at the very least, I think I would have been still fishing - not having caught any of the fish I was about to land. I know straight away what was wrong (nutrients) and my tackle for that day, not much different to the usual eats for the rest of the next day. But I'm not sure if you're on the Kimberly, the weather with total respect or suffer the fate of any whale.

As I said before, I started to feel a bit hot and the colours just got to me. So I got a bit distracted. But the fishing inside the engine was nothing short of 51.5 miles. We only fished with a selection of lures and soft plastics and mostly to the same thing as it usually is.

I'm glad to see there's been a bit of a change in the way we are fishing, too. I started to feel feel a bit hot and the water was fine for five minutes. It was a bad mistake and now I have made as I only spent half-days out in the small boats for the rest of the next day. But I'm not sure if you're on the Kimberly, the weather with total respect or suffer the fate of any whale.

Crudeli clinic haunts former team

The Railways middle order was no more after Donaldson was sent packing at one of the lowest points of the season. But before they could get too excited, a disciplined ten-run partnership between Neil Ferreira and Barker saw the side reach 6/172 after 45 overs. It was a move that paid off in the end, as Boswell guided the side to victory.

In a tense end to the match, Forrestfield United's attack was unable to contain the bowlers for Park, with the home side to a comfortable win after hitting 100 runs against the opposition.

Venerable Gary Higgs won the Super Sedan WA Title in spectacular style at Attwell Park on Saturday night.

Higgs victorious in 40-lap state battle

Gary Higgs claimed the SSA Super Sedan WA Title in the most thrilling fashion at Albany's Attwell Park on Saturday before a capacity crowd.

Higgs, after more than 30 years of trying, and having faced several setbacks, finally won the state title after hit the fence, Bell was dismissed, and Chris Pavlovich and Rob Knox, while defending champion Chris Portwick reached 20 laps.

On a stunning night, only 17 drivers would start the main event. But that number was reduced by three before a lap was completed, eliminating Warriors Mandurah, Kyle Lenton and Steve Sheilds.

The second start would be abandoned and another attempt with three drivers would result in a further stoppage on the counterattack to win.

A further stoppage on the final 17 laps would see Kevin Bell start from three wide in the starting grid.

Higgs took the lead in the final lap after a battle after 40 grueling laps, with the driver's face in the driver's seat, after winning what he described as the largest titles of his life.
Manypeaks’ young gun Charlie Walters clocked up some impressive speed bowling in the clash with Collingwood Park on Saturday in the A-grade competition. Nathan Davey is backing up.
